MARIE CHORGAS TAKES STAND

LOVER ACCUSES MRS. SNYDER OF MURDER PLOT

Today

An Important Crime.
There Is Other News.
Flood, Sunday Work, Stocks.
And the Big Los Angles.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

WHAT makes a murder important? New York makes the Snyder murder case violently important news. Even Cyrus H. K. Curtis' gentle, refined newspaper yesterday printed 15 columns of type and six pictures about that one crime, twice as much as it ever prints about anything "respectable."

THE average man kills a woman, or a woman kills a man, and 10 lines tell enough about it. Mrs. Snyder's husband is killed, sleeping; wire is fastened around his neck to make sure he will never wake; his skull is broken with a sash weight. And it takes 15 columns to tell that Mrs. Snyder says Mr. Gray did it, and she tried to stop him.

THE public asks: "Why did they do it? How could they do it?" The Rev. Dr. Straton writes about it and concludes, "You cannot cheat God." David Belasco sees Mrs. Snyder and reports "She's filled with fear."

The human race in its past and present primitive state is run by three mainsprings or impulses, which, in the order of their importance, are self-preservation, reproduction and ambition.

The first two, most powerful, make the Snyder case important news. The second human mainspring brought the two accused into the shadow of the electric chair. The first, most powerful, love of life, makes them now hate and denounce each other.

For an opportunity to see and hear the man and woman accuse each other, human beings in and around New York would gladly pay $10,000,000 in admission fees.

And that tells you what the human race is in this year of our Lord.

IS THERE no real news? Yes, the usual run, but it cannot compete with the Snyder case.

Col. Ewing, of New Orleans, reports that no danger threatens his city. Water rushing, millions of cubic feet per minute, through the crevasse opened purposely 10 miles below the city, finds its own way to the gulf, never returning to the river. New Orleans is not worried.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY miles up the river, four new crevasses, caused by high water, have flooded six parishes and made 140,000 more homeless. The Red Cross, having collected $5,000,000, asks for $5,000,000 more, to help out.

REAL help, in the way of prevention, should come from the government and engineers like those that built the Panama canal. Sweet charity is beautiful, when it is not too late.

Nature's Loveliest Gift is Rose

No decorative plant has been more closely identified with the progress of western civilization than the rose. It is an insignia alike of joy, of sorrow, of love, and of war. It is the flower beloved by all.

No garden is complete without its roses. And no other plant can be used in such a variety of ways—for the lawn and border, for the arbor and trellis, for the hedge, for cutting, and for other ornamental purposes.

Roses are not difficult to grow and the time and effort required will be rewarded by an abundance of wonderful blooms that will be a delight all summer long.

This Bureau has for distribution a booklet entitled "Roses for the Home." Whether a rose expert, or a beginner, you need this book. Send for your copy today.

LONDON, May 4.—Bitterness was again evident in the house of commons this afternoon as the second reading of the government's bill to prohibit unauthorized strikes approached.

REVEALS OTHER ALLEGED METHODS

"It Was Too Damn Bad Gas Tube Was Not Long Enough to Put in His Nose," Quotation Used by Witness.

By James L. Kilgallen.

QUEENS COUNTY COURT HOUSE, LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 4.—Turning words attributed to him by Mrs. Ruth Snyder into her own lips, Henry Judd Gray testifying for his life on the witness stand today at the Snyder-Gray murder trial asserted that Mrs. Snyder told him she had made an attempt to end her husband's life with gas but I didn't have any luck."

Fed Victim "Powders," Witness Says.

Gray testified that Mrs. Snyder tried to kill her husband by feeding him "powders," and that she used another method by feeding him drinks in the garage while the motor on his car was running, figuring he would be asphyxiated by monoxide fumes. She also asked how "knockout drops" worked, he said.

"It was too damn bad the gas tube wasn't long enough to put to his nose," Mrs. Snyder informed him at a love meeting, according to Gray.

This was the exact quotation Mrs. Snyder put in the mouth of Gray when she was testifying on the witness stand for her own life.

Gray, immaculately dressed, answered smoothly the questions of his lawyer, Samuel L. Miller.

Gray's dark, kinky hair was freshly barbered and his haberdashery was smart and faultless. His clear, sonorous voice came distinctly through the electrically operated loudspeakers.

Gray looked directly at his lawyer, Samuel L. Miller, through thick-lensed yellow-tinted glasses as Miller questioned him.

Gray on Witness Stand.

Miller asked his questions in a friendly manner.

Q. Did you meet Mrs. Snyder in Hearn's restaurant in July, 1926, and did she show you an insurance policy?

A. Yes, she did show me a policy.

Miller then produced three insurance policies.

"I show you this policy," said Miller, handing it to the witness. "Did she show you it that day when you met her in the restaurant?"

"She did."

Q. For what amount is this policy?

A. Five thousand dollars.

Q. Tell us what was your conversation with her regarding that policy.

A. She showed the policy to me and asked me to examine it. She wanted to know if it contained any provision for drowning. She said her husband was swimming a lot that summer and might drown. I was in a hurry and only glanced through it. I told her I didn't know whether it had a drowning provision or not and returned it to her.

CO-DEFENDANT TESTIFIES AS RINI COUNSEL PROTESTS MOVE

TWO-HOUR RECESS

Woman Will Tell Story of Alleged Stabbing.

Mrs. Marie Chorgas, 28, of Minneapolis, state's ace in the second degree murder trial of Salvatore Rini, 27, of East Liverpool, with whom she is jointly indicted in the death of Pasquale Anania, 25, of Wellsville, took the witness stand in common pleas court, Lisbon, at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Holds Key to Mystery.

Mrs. Chorgas was expected to tell the events leading up to the death of Anania, whose body, with a knife wound in the heart, was found in Rini's apartment in a Walnut street building on the night of March 22, last. The state claims Anania was stabbed during a fight, while the defense contends that he accidentally killed himself while carving meat with a butcher knife.

The Chorgas woman is believed to hold the key to the mystery, as other than she there were no eye-witnesses of the death scene.

She began testifying at the expiration of a two-hour recess of court, when Judge W. F. Lones, ruling on a question of law, held that the co-defendant could not be compelled to offer evidence, because of the possibility of incriminating herself, but if she so desired she had the opoprtunity to qualify as a state witness.

Defense Protests.

Attorneys W. A. O'Grady and Raymond Knepper, both of Wellsville, defending Rini, protested the state's attempt to use the witness, contending that she could not take the stand against a co-defendant unless the indictment against her were quashed.

Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes argued that Mrs. Chorgas had a right to testify if she wished.

Attorney S. W. Crawford, representing the woman, took no part in the argument.

Judge Lones dismissed the jurors when the argument began, and at 10:45 o'clock adjourned court until 12:45 while he took the question of law under advisement.

Law is Quoted.

Defense attorneys, in support of their argument, quoted Section 13670 of the General Code which reads:

"When two or more persons are jointly indicted before any of the accused has gone into his defense the court may direct one of such accused to be discharged that he may be a witness for the state. An accused person when there is not sufficient evidence to put him upon his defense may be discharged by the court, or, if not so discharged shall be entitled to the immediate verdict of the jury, for the purpose of giving evidence for others accused with him. Such order of discharge in either case shall be a bar to another prosecution for the same offense."

During the early part of the forenoon Felix Anania, an uncle of Pasquale Anania; Patrolman William Lister and Chief of Police Hugh J. McDermott, all of East Liverpool, were cross-examined by defense attorneys. They had testified under direct examination yesterday afternoon.

CO-DEFENDANT TESTIFIES AS RINI COUNSEL PROTESTS MOVE

TWO-HOUR RECESS

Woman Will Tell Story of Alleged Stabbing.

Mrs. Marie Chorgas, 28, of Minneapolis, state's ace in the second degree murder trial of Salvatore Rini, 27, of East Liverpool, with whom she is jointly indicted in the death of Pasquale Anania, 25, of Wellsville, took the witness stand in common pleas court, Lisbon, at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Holds Key to Mystery.

Mrs. Chorgas was expected to tell the events leading up to the death of Anania, whose body, with a knife wound in the heart, was found in Rini's apartment in a Walnut street building on the night of March 22, last. The state claims Anania was stabbed during a fight, while the defense contends that he accidentally killed himself while carving meat with a butcher knife.

The Chorgas woman is believed to hold the key to the mystery, as other than she there were no eye-witnesses of the death scene.

She began testifying at the expiration of a two-hour recess of court, when Judge W. F. Lones, ruling on a question of law, held that the co-defendant could not be compelled to offer evidence, because of the possibility of incriminating herself, but if she so desired she had the opoprtunity to qualify as a state witness.

Defense Protests.

Attorneys W. A. O'Grady and Raymond Knepper, both of Wellsville, defending Rini, protested the state's attempt to use the witness, contending that she could not take the stand against a co-defendant unless the indictment against her were quashed.

Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes argued that Mrs. Chorgas had a right to testify if she wished.

Attorney S. W. Crawford, representing the woman, took no part in the argument.

Judge Lones dismissed the jurors when the argument began, and at 10:45 o'clock adjourned court until 12:45 while he took the question of law under advisement.

Law is Quoted.

Defense attorneys, in support of their argument, quoted Section 13670 of the General Code which reads:

"When two or more persons are jointly indicted before any of the accused has gone into his defense the court may direct one of such accused to be discharged that he may be a witness for the state. An accused person when there is not sufficient evidence to put him upon his defense may be discharged by the court, or, if not so discharged shall be entitled to the immediate verdict of the jury, for the purpose of giving evidence for others accused with him. Such order of discharge in either case shall be a bar to another prosecution for the same offense."

During the early part of the forenoon Felix Anania, an uncle of Pasquale Anania; Patrolman William Lister and Chief of Police Hugh J. McDermott, all of East Liverpool, were cross-examined by defense attorneys. They had testified under direct examination yesterday afternoon.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

WHY FLOOD'S "WORST IN HISTORY" TOLD BY U. S. FORESTRY CHIEF

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The worst flood in American history?

WILLIAM B. GREELEY

In fact, he considers that a darn mild way of expressing it.

Why, this has been the worst flood the Mississippi valley ever knew—not only in historic times, but in pre-historic times, likewise.

They didn't think of having such floods back when Hernando de Soto first sighted the Father of Waters.

They didn't have 'em when Columbus was making the egg stand on end. The original Indians and buffalo never heard of such a thing.

This has been the worst flood the Mississippi valley has had since there's been a Mississippi valley.

ALL this is according to the forest service of the United States department of agriculture.

How does the forest service know so much about what things were like long before the country was discovered—long before there were any measurements or army engineers or weather bureau or anything?

It knows, rejoins Chief Greeley, because it stands to reason that the Mississippi must have behaved itself when its headwaters and the headwaters of all its tributaries were in thickly-wooded country.

THE rain fell, pitter-patter, on the leaves and dripped off gradually.

The snow melted and started little rivulets, but they had to twist and turn, every which-way, to get around big tree trunks, and they didn't get down hill very fast, there were so many detours to be taken into account.

The tree roots absorbed lots of moisture, too.

Besides, the ground was covered with moss and decaying vegetation, which sopped up water like sixty. To be sure, a good deal of it oozed out again, but it was all summer doing it.

They didn't have bad floods in those days. They couldn't.

THEN along came a huge army of vandalse and amputated those forests, slick and clean.

They chopped down the trees or set fire to 'em. They grubbed up even the stumps or blew 'em to smithereens with dynamite. And they never planted a blamed stick of timber in place of 'em.

Today there's a big rainstorm, or the snow melts and lets loose billions of gallons of water.

It goes rampaging down those bare hillsides like a millrace.

It hits the bottom ker-splash!—same as dashing it out of a bucket.

NATURALLY the brooks swell up and then the creeks and then the rivers and the Mississippi overflows and the very devil's to pay, and everybody says:

"Gol-ding the Mississippi! How in the nation are we going to control this blinkety-blank stream, anyway?"

Ya ain't going to control it. That's Chief Forester Greeley's answer—not till you plant more forests up in the country where the water comes from.

LEVEES and dikes! Outlets and reservoirs!

All these schemes leave Chief Greeley cold. Trees! They're his program.

How long will it take? Oh, a generation or two. But we may as well get busy, he opines, because otherwise things are going to get worse right along, instead of better.

TEETH IN RELATION TO HEALTH

DIET AND RESISTANCE

Editor's note—The following is another of the series of articles on various phases of dentistry prepared by a representative of the East Liverpool-Wellsville Dental society.)

The biggest problem in the world today is the health problem, and the biggest thing in the health problem is the diet and habits in the early periods of a child's life. This statement may seem very strange coming from the dental profession, rather than from the medical profession, but Dr. Charles Mayo, of the famous Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., made the assertion a few years ago, "That the next great advance in medicine must come from the dental profession, and wondered if they would take care of it."

The deficiencies which manifest themselves in the dental apparatus of the child are generally, in part at least, results of deficiencies in the diet of the Mother before the child is born and wrong feeding of the infant. The diet which will protect the teeth of the mother against the heavy demands of the pre-natal period is the very diet to supply material for the bones and teeth of the prospective child. It is the belief of the dental research workers that in children with small narrow arches in which the teeth are crowded and crocked that there has been a lack of development of the bones of the face, and this condition is due to a deficiency in the nutrition, and so with the proper diet it is possible, as well as the perfectly natural thing to do, to build up and maintain a nutritional balance that will build up and maintain a perfectly healthy body, with well-developed bones, muscles, teeth and all the other organs of the human body.

In the narrow, under-developed mouths there is a restricted condition of the air passage and sinuses, which later in life creates a condition very susceptible to catarrh, throat and ear troubles, mouth breathing, etc. Therefore, please bear in mind that tooth trouble does always originate in the mouth. Our medical brothers truthfully tell us that a clean healthy body will not get sick. Healthy teeth resist decay; sick teeth invite decay.

In that rapidly growing period of children—fourteen to eighteen—when so much lime salts, etc. are required for the bones and muscles, the teeth are very susceptible to decay, many mouths showing white spots on the teeth which break down and form cavities. A correct diet earlier in life would have built up a resistance to this condition. If an increase of resistance is built up in early life of the child, and nature will build up this condition if given the proper material with which to build it, then there will be much greater increased resistance to systemic diseases. When the body vitality is lost there is an acid condition to the system which is favorable to decay of the teeth. If the nutritional balance of the individual is maintained at the proper level, the teeth will exhibit a very high degree of resistance to decay, but when there is a serious unbalanced nutrition, the resisting power of the teeth is greatly reduced, and if this unbalanced condition is continued long enough, and in many cases it requires only a comparatively short time, the teeth will be practically destroyed from conditions within the system but wholly apart from the teeth themselves.

A balanced diet will contain liberal quantities of unpasteurized whole milk, leafy vegetables, fruits, especially orange juice including the pulp which is excellent for the bowels, etc. Unpasteurized milk should be used because the Pasteurizing process destroys the vitamines contained in it which is also true in the cooking of vegetables and fruits. Fruits and vegetables that are ripened in the sun, whole wheat bread, bran, etc. are the foods that will build up a strong resistance to mouth troubles. We know that great susceptibility to decay of the teeth, and the unhealthy condition of the soft tissues of the mouth, are the oral, or mouth expression of a lowered physical condition, so by building up a strong physical vitality we will have a mouth and teeth that will resist trouble. The so-called "soft teeth" that all dentists hear so much about are only the results of denying nature the proper material with which to build good teeth.

Pains That Never Came

Here's glorious news for long-suffering womankind! To every woman who periodically has suffered pain. Menstruation need no longer be painful. And it is Science that is speaking!

Specialists have developed a tiny tablet called midol. It's a simple thing, utterly harmless to a girl of fourteen, but it brings relief in five to seven minutes. And is effective twelve hours or longer!

Midol is NOT a narcotic. It has no effect whatever on heart or nervous system. It acts directly on those organs affected by menstruation. They function normally, as they should, but the pain is banished. Complete relief—yes, perfect comfort—follows midol.

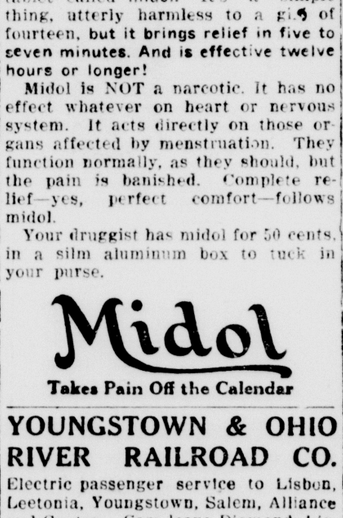

Your druggist has midol for 50 cents, in a slim aluminum box to tuck in your purse.

Pains That Never Came

Here's glorious news for long-suffering womankind! To every woman who periodically has suffered pain. Menstruation need no longer be painful. And it is Science that is speaking!

Specialists have developed a tiny tablet called midol. It's a simple thing, utterly harmless to a girl of fourteen, but it brings relief in five to seven minutes. And is effective twelve hours or longer!

Midol is NOT a narcotic. It has no effect whatever on heart or nervous system. It acts directly on those organs affected by menstruation. They function normally, as they should, but the pain is banished. Complete relief—yes, perfect comfort—follows midol.

Your druggist has midol for 50 cents, in a slim aluminum box to tuck in your purse.

EAT WHAT YOU WANT: FORGET ABOUT DIETING

Sound Health Advice Is Offered by Cleveland Woman.

Don't go on dieting and wondering what you ought to eat to make you well. Just pitch in and eat everything your appetite craves. Nature knows what is best for you and if you didn't require certain foods you would have no desire for them.

Redwood.

Mrs. Elsie McKee, 3140 W. Fiftieth St., Cleveland, Ohio says: "For ten years I suffered with stomach and kidney trouble and all the dieting I ever did never helped me one bit.

"I was so run down that I felt tired all the time and would wake up mornings with a sick headache. My back was so sore that I could hardly bend over. I had a pain in my right side and my nerves were all unstrung.

"My brother-in-law told me how Redwood's Tonic had helped him and so I got a bottle. It was just what I needed. My stomach and kidneys are in better condition that they have been for ten years. My nerves are quiet and I sleep soundly, consequently I don't feel tired during the day.

"I have a better appetite and eat just what I want without bad after effects. My pains are all gone and my bowels are regular. I am going to keep right on taking Redwood's Tonic for several months."

Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic is recommended and sold in East Liverpool by Carnahan's Drug Store and by well stocked druggists everywhere.

CONVICT LABOR APPEAL DENIED

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A contract for the hire of convict labor which was obtained with cost cannot be included in the invested capital of a corporation, it was held today by the board of tax appeals in the appeal of the Kleeson company of Moundsville, W. Va., against the commissioner of internal revenue.

The company, organized by John A. Bloyd and Marcus Bachenheimer, obtained without cost a contract for prison labor, which it held to be worth $150,000. It deducted from its income each year the fifth of the estimated value of its five-year contract, but the commissioner of internal revenue disallowed the deduction and assessed the company with additional taxes amounting to more than $40,000 in three years. The board of appeals sustained the commissioner.

SPECIAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

The chief executive outlined his views to members of a committee of the house and senate which called to notify him that both branches were ready to adjourn. O. O. Allison, Hancock county, was the minority member of the committee. Others were Senators Wilkin, Brooke county; Ashworth, Raleigh county, and Delegate Halstead of Kanawha county.

Here's Real Relief From Neuritis

In 24 to 48 Hours Pains Are Often Relieved and You Get Rest and Comfort Again.

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that rob a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

Those are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only partially relieve.

The safest and most efficient way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and in about 24 hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced if not almost banished those severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more or until you are satisfied with results.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your Neuritis is in the shoulder, arm, neck or legs, Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2 should give you speedy relief. Mathews Med. Store or any good druggist will be glad to supply you.

Missionary Meeting.

Rev. John MacDonald, pastor of the Avondale Free Methodist church, East Liverpool, will speak tonight at the Missionary services in the Chester Free Methodist church. Quartet from the Avondale church will sing. Meeting will begin at 8 o'clock.

Attended 200,000 Patients.

That he had given gratuitous advice to about 200,000 poor people was declared by Dr. M. Thompson, of Omagh, Ireland, in a letter sent recently to the Clogher Board of Guardians. The message was in regard to unpaid fees for the care of poor in the vicinity of Ulster.

Proposed Vote On Mayor's Salary Slash

Judging from the number of signatures already placed on petitions now in circulation, a showdown on the proposal to reduce the mayor's annual salary from $1,800 to $600 a year is certain at the November 8 election, unless city council, in the interim, reconsiders its action of a few weeks ago.

Under the provisions of what is familiarly known as the I. and R. law, petitioners will submit an initiative ordinance, which, if approved, shall become effective on January 1, 1928, calling for the pay cut. The economy measure is prompted by the fact that the city executive, through the establishment of the municipal court, has been relieved of much of the work that formerly fell to his lot.

By a one-vote margin, councilmen recently defeated the suggested legislation. Solons Hughes, Hayes and Kommel supported the plan, while their colleagues, Farrall, Goodballet, Kelly and Poole voted against it.

The consensus of opinion, apparently, seems to be that the municipal legislators should reconsider their action, thus saving the taxpayers the expense of calling a vote. If councilmen are so disposed, the step should be taken at tomorrow night's session. Otherwise, their judgment, as well as the economy ordinance, will be on trial at the fall election.

American Policy in China

The United States government, while co-operating militarily with the other powers in their protective work in China, is apparently pursuing a course of its own diplomatically. This is a policy in which most Americans take genuine satisfaction.

Whatever reasons there may be for co-operating with other powers in international matters elsewhere, and there are many, the argument for unity has little application to China. European interests there are not ours. America has no concessions there, no seaports, no special holdings or rights or privileges of any kind. It has only the history and tradition of square dealing with China, and insistence that in trade matter all nations shall be treated alike.

America has been a consistent friend of China for half a century, while other powers have been grabbing Chinese territory and acquiring dubious privileges of many kinds which they now feel called on to defend. It is no part of American duty to help the other powers hold those privileges. America is not obligated to pull any of their chestnuts out of the fire, or join them in coercing China to provide more chestnuts.

America asks only for fair treatment of Americans, and protection for American life and property, and will stand a better chance of getting these benefits by playing a lone hand than by helping the game of the imperialistic powers.

Great Britain, France and Italy seem to feel very bad about it. They might feel better if they would follow the American example. And they may do that very thing, if America stands pat on her policy of justice to China and non-interference in Chinese affairs.

Beauty Classes

Something new in public education is "personal appearance classes." As conducted by a commercial high school, they sound appealing.

The classes, needless to say, are for girls. They have a possible rating of 100 per cent. Everything that contributes to the general improvement of the pupil's appearance—health, dress, cleanliness, adornment, etc.—is counted in. There is no effort at "reform," except hygienic and artistic reform. There is no prohibition of rouge or lipstick, but the girl who uses either finds her rating pulled down 5 or 10 points, and a run in her silk stocking may reduce it another 10 points.

The girls are really interested in those classes. And why not? Beauty is heaven's first law, and any plan that will add more beauty to the world by improving girls' appearance in natural and sensible ways adds so much to the joy of life for everybody. It is better, too, to have right ideas of beauty taught in school than wrong ideas learned elsewhere.

No More Guns By Mail

May 10 is a notable day for one reason. On that day the law prohibiting the promiscuous use of the mails for the shipping of firearms will become effective. Congress enacted the law and Postmaster General New has sent a list of the regulations to all postmasters and responsible postal officials. From May 10 forward it should be difficult for gun-buyers to get their weapons from mail order houses and to make the United States government a party to their purchases by carrying the guns in the mail.

A fine of $1,000 and a two-year term in a federal penitentiary are the penalties for so using the mails.

Gun-men will still get hold of guns, but not quite so easily as before. Barring firearms from the mails is only one small move in their regulation, but it is one decidedly in the right direction.

It may be all right for girls to try to look like boys as long as boys don't try to look like girls.

THE PROPER PLACE FOR SYMPATHY.

First appearances are frequently deceitful, that is why it doesn't always pay to bestow one's sympathies too quickly, as witness the moral of this tale:

A gentleman of a kindly turn of mind, on his way to dinner, met a small boy of the neighborhood who showed unmistakable signs of having just figured in a hand battle. It distressed the kind gentleman to think that little boys of his acquaintance should fight with one another.

He halted the battered urchin.

"Tommy," he said reprovingly, "I am very sorry to see that you have a black eye."

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 4.—Those ragged little shavers found nightly in West 47th and 48th street, near Broadway, roam in packs—with a leader. They hang about cafe and theatre doors, hawking soiled last editions and opening taxi doors for small change.

With their trifling spoils they pitch pennies at cracks or roll dice and stampede off in full cry at the sight of a blue uniform. Once in awhile they vary their routine by sidewalk clogging for tossed coins. They are rather pathetic little bundles of rags.

Most of them show the effect of malnutrition. Their drooping trousers are held to tattered shirts by wires or nails and their hats are several sizes too big. They are orphans of Broadway's destroying storm—eluding truant and correction house officers for months.

The leaders rule by might of tiny fists. There is an unfailing code of fairness among themselves, but the world is their oyster for trivial pillage. They sleep where ever night finds them and rarely appear in the side street bright lights until dusk.

The manner is tough. "Hully gee" talk out of the side of the mouth is the conversationalism medium. And they greet stern reality with a bravado. Gangs fight rival gangs and noses are bloodied and faces scratched without a whimper.

Nearly all the famous gangsters have come from similar environment. They become as naturally predatory as scavenging birds and usually wind up in prison before they are 21. Some are without parents, some have been cast off and others have cut away to drift. All are homeless.

I have seen them huddled together and nodding in the sooty seethe of garage doorways as late as 4 a. m. They may try to sell you a last week copy of a newspaper or hit off a new Charleston step for a bit of change, but I have yet to see one who stoops to outright begging. There is something magnificent in their independence.

Julius Tannen, the actor, several months ago, salvaged one of the West 47th street tatterdemalions out of the gutter to give him a better chance. He was a tow-headed youngster, generously freckled and with two missing front teeth. He called himself "Red" McKenna and was so adept at jigging that Tannen introduced him at various benefits and Sunday night concerts where he ended in a shower of change. Julius tried to adopt him, but a legal religious barrier intervened and he was sent to a Children's Society. When Tannen took the boy to his home at Forest Hills, he looked out over the lawn and as one making a great discovery, pointed and cried: "Gee, a tree. I seen 'em on the back drops."

There is another who says his name is just "Mickey." About a year ago he fell desperately in love with a beautiful leading lady and haunted the stage door, hiding in shadows for just a glimpse of her. One night she did not appear. The doorman told him she wasill in a West-End hospital. Next morning early, he appeared in the hospital reception room with his face scrubbed white and his neck revealing a high water mark. He carried a bunch of flowers for her. He was asked by an attendant, where he got them. "I pinched 'em," he replied, 'at a dago funeral."

Jimmy Geards is a street gamin who led a raid on a garage and was the only one caught. A lawyer told him to squeal on his pals and thereby win a light sentence. Instead he told the judge: "Put it all on me. The other kids has mudders.? I ain't so I'll take the rap,', He not only got a suspended sentence, but the judge started a collection that netted $25 and turned it over to him.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Vegetable Acreage Reduced.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—The acreage devoted to the growing of vegetables that are to be canned has been materially reduced for the season of 1927. In an isolated instance the reduction is only 2 per cent, but it runs from that up to 30 per cent and the average is around 25 per cent. Such are the unofficial figures from the canning industry. They tell a tale of more hard luck for the American farmer.

The situation is not so bad, however, as it has been represented in some of the reports that have been circulated. For example, widespread publicity has been given a story to the effect that the canners have stocks of peas on hand sufficient to supply all ordinary demands of the trade for at least two years.

The facts are that on April 1 last 96 canning firms reported to the Department of Agriculture surplus stocks of peas aggregating 2,215,148 cases, while 14 firms reported no stocks on hand. The firms reporting represented about one-third of the total acreage planted to peas for canning purposes last year, and from this it may be estimated that the total surplus stock can not be expected to exceed 6,650,000 cases. The pack in 1926 was 17,709,000 cases and two years ago it was well over the 19,000,000 mark, so it is apparent that a surplus stock which at the maximum is barely a third of the annual pack is not sufficient to meet market demands for a period of two years.

The fact that the contract acreage for all vegetables has been curtailed for the present season is evidence, however, that there has been over-production in the canning industry. Firms representing 40 per cent of the average planted last year to sweet corn for canning purposes reported on April 1 surplus stocks aggregating more than 4,000,000 cases. This would indicate a possible surplus of 20,000,000 cases, whereas the total pack for 1926 was 19,069,000 cases and for 1925, 24,320,000 cases. Similarly, tomato canners representing 15 per cent of the 1926 acreage reported stocks on hand of 1,405,309 cases, which would indicate a total surplus of about 9,000,000 cases, as compared with a pack of 9,455,000 cases for last year, which was a decided drop from the 1925 pack of 19,770,000 cases.

The Farmer's Best Bet.

Growing vegetables for the canners is perhaps the farmer's bet best. The canners enter into a contract with him to plant or sow a certain number of acres, they supply him with seed, and they agree to take his crop at a stipulated price. He does not have to worry about finding a market for his product nor as to the price he will receive. His sole concern is as to the weather and other growing conditions, and if worse comes to worst, his loss is only his labor or part of it.

Growing wheat, corn, and other farm or garden products is a different proposition. The farmer must finance his own planting, he must use his own judgment as to acreage, he must gamble on the weather, and he never knows the price his crops will bring until he goes to market. He may find that he has raised too much or too little of a certain crop, too much rain or a drought may curtail his production, and a dozen and one factors may depress prices until he finds that he does not realize enough on his crops to pay for his seed and planting.

If the farmer could grow all his products on the contract acreage basis, knowing in advance the prices he will receive for them, agriculture would cease to be such a highly speculative industry and there probably would be no need and no demand for farm relief legislation suuch as was embodied in the Haugen-McNary Bill which President Coolidge vetoed.

Growing vegetables for canning has increased rapidly in recent years. In 1908 the pea pack was only 5,577,060 cases, and for the three succeeding years it was less than that, the low mark being 4,347,000 cases in 1910. But in 1912 it had jumped to well over the 7,000,000 mark and by 1918 it had exceeded 11,000,000.

Wisconsin is the banner state when it comes to producing peas for the canners. For years the pack there has approximated or exceeded that for all the other states combined. It ran above 10,000,000 cases both in 1924 and 1925, and last year it was 9,287,000 cases out of a total pack for the country of 17,109,000 cases. New York ranks second, with a pack in 1926 of 2,264,000 cases, and for the last five years Utah has held third place, with a pack averaging close to 1,000,000 cases.

Where Corn Comes From.

Iowa led in the production of canned corn in 1908, but Illinois took the lead in 1909 and since that time the rivalry between the two states has been keen, with Maryland looming up as a contender all these years. In 1925 when the corn pack ran well above 24,000,000 cases, Iowa and Illinois supplied a third of it with more than 4,000,000 cases each, while Maryland was not far behind with 3,678,000. Last year Iowa and Illinois again had their third of the national production, but each had dropped off a million cases, while Maryland was running a million and a half behind her 1925 record. Minnesota has shown a great increase in canned corn, her pack last years being almost six times what it was in 1918, and Indiana is another state that is doing well in corn, with a pack for the last two years well in excess of 2,000,000 cases, as compared with a fourth of that in 1918.

For 20 years the production of canned tomatoes has ranged from ten to fifteen million cases annually save for two years—1921 when it dropped to approximately four million, and 1925 when it totaled almost twenty million. In all these years Marylaad has topped the table of production by states except in 1919 and last year. As far back as 1908 Maryland turned out almost 5,000,000 cans of tomatoes and four years later she attained the mark of 6,350,000, which she has exceeded only once, in 1918, with 6,649,475.

California got into the canned tomato business, statistically speaking, in 1915 with a pack of 1,281,000 cases, and she has ranked second or third every year since except in the years she took first place from Maryland.

The aggregate pack of all vegetables in the United States runs from 75 to 100 million cases each year, with a value ranging from $185,000,000 to $250,000,000. The big items are the staples — corn, peas, tomatoes, and beans—with beans, in the various forms in which they are packed, leading with a pack of around 25,000,000 cases valued at upward of $55,000,000. Asparagus ranks after the staples, but with a pack of a million and a half cases that is worth some $11,000,000.

The fruit pack, with peaches leading, runs from 20 to 25 million cases with a value of from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000. Of fish and oysters, with salmon out in front, 12 to 15 million cases are packed and they bring from $73,000,000 to $80,000,000.

Other canned products, such as soups, milk, meat, pickles, sauces, preserves, jellies, and jams, and who would you, run to many, many cans, because they are small, but their aggregate value adds up to the respectable sum of $375,000,000 or $400,000,000 annually.

The pack in 1926 was 17,709,000 cases and two years ago it was well over the 19,000,000 mark, so it is apparent that a surplus stock which at the maximum is barely a third of the annual pack is not sufficient to meet market demands for a period of two years.

The fact that the contract acreage for all vegetables has been curtailed for the present season is evidence, however, that there has been over-production in the canning industry. Firms representing 40 per cent of the average planted last year to sweet corn for canning purposes reported on April 1 surplus stocks aggregating more than 4,000,000 cases. This would indicate a possible surplus of 20,000,000 cases, whereas the total pack for 1926 was 19,069,000 cases and for 1925, 24,320,000 cases. Similarly, tomato canners representing 15 per cent of the 1926 acreage reported stocks on hand of 1,405,309 cases, which would indicate a total surplus of about 9,000,000 cases, as compared with a pack of 9,455,000 cases for last year, which was a decided drop from the 1925 pack of 19,770,000 cases.

The Farmer's Best Bet.

Growing vegetables for the canners is perhaps the farmer's bet best. The canners enter into a contract with him to plant or sow a certain number of acres, they supply him with seed, and they agree to take his crop at a stipulated price. He does not have to worry about finding a market for his product nor as to the price he will receive. His sole concern is as to the weather and other growing conditions, and if worse comes to worst, his loss is only his labor or part of it.

Growing wheat, corn, and other farm or garden products is a different proposition. The farmer must finance his own planting, he must use his own judgment as to acreage, he must gamble on the weather, and he never knows the price his crops will bring until he goes to market. He may find that he has raised too much or too little of a certain crop, too much rain or a drought may curtail his production, and a dozen and one factors may depress prices until he finds that he does not realize enough on his crops to pay for his seed and planting.

If the farmer could grow all his products on the contract acreage basis, knowing in advance the prices he will receive for them, agriculture would cease to be such a highly speculative industry and there probably would be no need and no demand for farm relief legislation suuch as was embodied in the Haugen-McNary Bill which President Coolidge vetoed.

Growing vegetables for canning has increased rapidly in recent years. In 1908 the pea pack was only 5,577,060 cases, and for the three succeeding years it was less than that, the low mark being 4,347,000 cases in 1910. But in 1912 it had jumped to well over the 7,000,000 mark and by 1918 it had exceeded 11,000,000.

Wisconsin is the banner state when it comes to producing peas for the canners. For years the pack there has approximated or exceeded that for all the other states combined. It ran above 10,000,000 cases both in 1924 and 1925, and last year it was 9,287,000 cases out of a total pack for the country of 17,109,000 cases. New York ranks second, with a pack in 1926 of 2,264,000 cases, and for the last five years Utah has held third place, with a pack averaging close to 1,000,000 cases.

Where Corn Comes From.

Iowa led in the production of canned corn in 1908, but Illinois took the lead in 1909 and since that time the rivalry between the two states has been keen, with Maryland looming up as a contender all these years. In 1925 when the corn pack ran well above 24,000,000 cases, Iowa and Illinois supplied a third of it with more than 4,000,000 cases each, while Maryland was not far behind with 3,678,000. Last year Iowa and Illinois again had their third of the national production, but each had dropped off a million cases, while Maryland was running a million and a half behind her 1925 record. Minnesota has shown a great increase in canned corn, her pack last years being almost six times what it was in 1918, and Indiana is another state that is doing well in corn, with a pack for the last two years well in excess of 2,000,000 cases, as compared with a fourth of that in 1918.

For 20 years the production of canned tomatoes has ranged from ten to fifteen million cases annually save for two years—1921 when it dropped to approximately four million, and 1925 when it totaled almost twenty million. In all these years Maryland has topped the table of production by states except in 1919 and last year. As far back as 1908 Maryland turned out almost 5,000,000 cans of tomatoes and four years later she attained the mark of 6,350,000, which she has exceeded only once, in 1918, with 6,649,475.

California got into the canned tomato business, statistically speaking, in 1915 with a pack of 1,281,000 cases, and she has ranked second or third every year since except in the years she took first place from Maryland.

The aggregate pack of all vegetables in the United States runs from 75 to 100 million cases each year, with a value ranging from $185,000,000 to $250,000,000. The big items are the staples — corn, peas, tomatoes, and beans—with beans, in the various forms in which they are packed, leading with a pack of around 25,000,000 cases valued at upward of $55,000,000. Asparagus ranks after the staples, but with a pack of a million and a half cases that is worth some $11,000,000.

The fruit pack, with peaches leading, runs from 20 to 25 million cases with a value of from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000. Of fish and oysters, with salmon out in front, 12 to 15 million cases are packed and they bring from $73,000,000 to $80,000,000.

Other canned products, such as soups, milk, meat, pickles, sauces, preserves, jellies, and jams, and why would you, run to many, many cans, because they are small, but their aggregate value adds up to the respectable sum of $375,000,000 or $400,000,000 annually.

Whitman's Shop Wholly Modern and Up To Minute in Equipment and Service

Signallizes Efforts to Keep Abreast of Today's Demands for Better Personal Appearance; Utmost in Sanitation Achieved by Owner, One of City's Most Experienced Barbers.

Modernity is new—now; last week's accomplishments, while still remembered, perhaps, may be old today. The horse car gave way to the swift electric, the bustle to nothing at all, long skirts, atrocious hair, woolen hose and shiny nose to the hoyden, carefree flapper of today and now, it is whispered, the latter ns to become somewhat passe in favor of an exotic, slumberous, semi-Oriental type of sleeked black hair and sepia tinted complexion-new.

And so personal appearance changes gradually but inexorably as new foibles or mannerisms present themselves, and the materialistic servants of beauty (human nature demands beauty) must keep abreast, ever alert to a new demand, a new need.

Beauty can not be manufactured, nor bestowed as if by the flourish of a magic wand, but the modern barber, mindful of the requirements of a new generation and day, can aid beauty.

And to this end, considering the commercial aspect of the theme, Ralph Whitman, one of the city's oldest and best known barbers, has established and is operating probably one of the most modern and most thoroughly equipped combination barber shops and beauty parlors in this section of the state.

If design, materials of construction, appointments and equipment are to be considered in making comparisons, Whitman's needs bow to none, anywhere, and the service, certainly, is on a plane with the most thoroughly metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Feminine necessities in the way of permanents, marcels, manicures, facials, and the periodic hair trim that has become as necessary a part of Milady's routine as it has always been the gentleman's have made of themselves almost a business within a business at Whitman's, and not without reason.

At the heighth of her power, Cleopatra ranked as the reigning beauty of her day. The Enchantress of the Nile was one among many. Were she to return in the fullness of her beauty, today she could only be one of many. Aiding and developing beauty to the point where it may be expected to appear at its best has become an art and in the transition from the days ago, the means have been placed figuratively at the finger tips of every woman who seeks to develop personal appearance to the utmost.

Consider the convenience at Whitman's and the reason is not a mystery.

Private booths have been constructed for this particular line of work, each thoroughly equipped and constructed and of the best design and materials at the command of the Koken Barber Supply Co., of St. Louis.

In each is installed a modern chair, especially designed for this work—regular beauty parlor chairs, comfortable to the last word—a two-in-one "sliding unit" consisting of wash bowl and mirror and other accessory equipment. Thus, when the services of the washbowl are no longer required, a long mirror is shoved silently in front of it and directly facing the occupant of the chair. The bowl is eliminated from sight and the little compartment becomes a miniature boudoir.

In permanent waving, an important feature in the Whitman service, the Eugene system alone is used. This, according to Mrs. Whitman, who is in charge, is probably the most thorough system in vogue today. The waving, by use of a two way heater, is accomplished through the agency of steam, and the hair is not "baked." The Sunair drying system is used for hair and also in facials. Probably a noteworthy feature is the fact that any of this service is available without the patron moving from her chair.

But Whitman's is a "man's barber shop," too. And this section of his shop, directly off the street entrance, is just as painstakingly equipped as the beauty parlors.

Beautiful white Italian marble casing surrounds the large mirrors in front of five chairs. Each chair, too, has among its own accessory equipment, an individual washbowl, as another means of promoting sanitation.

The room, itself, large and airy, well laid off, has no superior in the matter of ventilation, an important consideration.

In fact, everything in the shops bespeaks modernity, as well as success for the efforts of its owner to conduct a business wherein courtesy, refinement and the innate ability of the members of its active personnel combine to provide its clientele with the best to be obtained in that business.

Girlish Charm

The exquisite daintiness you admire in so many women depends as much on their hair as their peach-blow complexion and stylish clothes. You can't look good with a pretty dress and dull, stringy hair any more than you would be neatly dressed if you had on a pair of shoes with runover heels.

You don't have to be denied the admiration you love, because your hair isn't lovely. It is so easy to keep it soft, bright and silky. But don't expect shampooing to do it. Soap and water only washes out the dirt, but can not remove dandruff and that oily film on each strand which keeps hair dull and lifeless. Danderine does it, without drying out the hair too.

The next time you fix your hair, wet your brush with Danderine and draw it through with long, even strokes until each strand is alive and glowing. It takes just a few minutes each day. There's no inconvenience of waiting. You can go right out, and the improvement you will see in the loveliness of your hair will thrill you so you will want to always have Danderine in your room along with your other beauty necessities, so you can make it a dainty habit to use it. It will help to keep in your waves.

Danderine is so inexpensive too. The 35c bottle contains enough to prove to you how wonderful it is. You can get it from your nearest store.

Miss Mae Vaness Becomes Bride of Raymond E. Foutts

A pretty wedding was solemnized at a high mass at 8 o'clock this morning in the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Wellsville, when Miss Mae Vaness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vaness of Clark avenue, Wellsville, became the bride of Raymond Edward Foutts, son of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Foutts of Alton street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. J. Gracey. The organist played Schubert's Serenade and Mendelssohn's Wedding march. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Byron Foutts Jr., of Midland, Pa., the former being a brother of the bridegroom.

The bride wore a gown of midnight blue crepe with hat to match, and her corsage was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Previous to her marriage she was employed in the Dorisanne Beauty Shoppe.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the home of the sister of the bride, Mrs. E. N. Ryan, of Fifteenth street, Wellsville covers being arranged for the immediate families.

Mr. and Mrs. Foutts left for a two weeks' honeymoon in New York. They will spend one week with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Civic of Pelham Manor, New York. Girlish Charm

The exquisite daintiness you admire in so many women depends as much on their hair as their peach-blow complexion and stylish clothes. You can't look good with a pretty dress and dull, stringy hair any more than you would be neatly dressed if you had on a pair of shoes with runover heels.

You don't have to be denied the admiration you love, because your hair isn't lovely. It is so easy to keep it soft, bright and silky. But don't expect shampooing to do it. Soap and water only washes out the dirt, but can not remove dandruff and that oily film on each strand which keeps hair dull and lifeless. Danderine does it, without drying out the hair too.

The next time you fix your hair, wet your brush with Danderine and draw it through with long, even strokes until each strand is alive and glowing. It takes just a few minutes each day. There's no inconvenience of waiting. You can go right out, and the improvement you will see in the loveliness of your hair will thrill you so you will want to always have Danderine in your room along with your other beauty necessities, so you can make it a dainty habit to use it. It will help to keep in your waves.

Danderine is so inexpensive too. The 35c bottle contains enough to prove to you how wonderful it is. You can get it from your nearest store.

WELLSVILLE SOLONS ADOPT STORM SEWER MEASURE

PLANS HOOKED UP

Council Factions Clash Across Table Over Legislation.

Ordinances providing for the construction of a storm sewer in Seventeenth street and the resurfacing of Lisbon road to the city limits were passed by Wellsville council on first readings last night.

The two ordinances, apparently, are tied up together. As counsel factions clashed across the table, members of the group advocating the enactment of the drainage relief measure standing ready to turn thumbs down on the Lisbon street proposal unless backers of the latter project come to their aid in the sewer voting.

Attempts to legislate the two ordinances through have assumed somewhat the aspect of an "East End" and "West End" controversy.

Resolution to place the sewer project on first reading, providing for the construction of a sewer 1,050 feet long, in Seventeenth street to Main and under the railroad tracks to the Ohio river, at a cost estimated at $18,000, was approved with Solon Connor casting the only dissenting vote.

Connor asserted that he felt as he did at first—that the people had turned the sewer proposal down at the polls.

Peters suggested that the city interview the county auditor to determine whether or not an extra quarter mill levy was available and then council could decide the course of action on the sewer.

In response to a query by Swearingen, Solicitor Luccock said that the prospect of getting the quarter mill was a little "shady," but there was some hope, at that.

"Let's throw our cards on the table, face up," demanded Councilman Nicholson, "and put the Lisbon street resurfacing on the same basis as the Seventeenth street sewer." Nicholson objected to economy in one respect and not in another.

At the voting the sewer proposal passed on first reading, with Connor voting against it.

Ordinance for the improvement of Lisbon street then was introduced and on a motion was placed before solons as an emergency measure under suspended rules.

And with the emergency clause in it it went down to defeat by a vote of four to three, Connor, Peters and McLean voting in the affirmative and Reil, Veldman, Swearingen and Nicholson in the negative.

On a motion by Reil, then, the ordinance was re-introduced on first reading and passed with Nicholson voting against it.

As a result, both the sewer and the Lisbon street ordinances were approved on first readings, only, and await action by the solons at subsequent meetings.

So few speed maniacs have been able to knock railroad trains off the tracks at grade crossings, that they may as well stop trying.—Cincinnati Times Star.

CITIZENS TO AID

Board of Health Pledges Its Co-operation.

Asking citizens of the city to co-operate with municipal authorities to make Wellsville a better place in which to live by cleaning up the winter's accumulation of cans and other debris, dressing up their properties and painting up, where painting is needed, Mayor W. L. Fogo today issued the following proclamation setting aside that section of the month from May 5 to May 20 as a clean up period:

"The city administration, acting with the chamber of commerce, board of education, all civic, industrial clubs and other organizations, has designated May 5 to 20, 1927, as a clean-up and paint-up period for Wellsville, Ohio.

"All citizens should join in this movement by giving their personal aid in cleaning up their property so as to avoid fire risks and to abolish fly and mosquito breeding places by planting flower and vegetable gardens, grass seeds, shrubs and trees, all of which tends to increase healthfulness of the citizens of Wellsville as well as increase the beauty of the city's surroundings.

ASKS COUNCIL TO ACT AGAINST FORCED SALE

Mayor Appeals to Solons for Immediate Action.

FIRST OF KIND

Finance Committee to Consider Problem Monday.

Exhibiting a legal advertisement in a newspaper in which announcement is made of the proposed sheriff's sale of Wells avenue property owned by the city, Mayor W. L. Fogo last night called upon solons to take whatever action may be necessary to prevent the sale.

The sale is intended to obtain funds to meet judgments rendered in favor of Attorney Charles Boyd against the city amounting to approximately $500 for remuneration in two cases.

"I never knew of this to occur at any other time in the history of the city," asserted the mayor, pointing out that while it was not the fault of council, the situation having been handed down from previous administrations, the solons should act against it.

Solicitor Luccock announced he would take the matter up with members of the finance committee at a meeting Monday night.

Service Director Ashley, referring to petitions from "over the crossing" residents complaining of the length of time in which railroad trains blocked the Eighteenth street crossing, notified council that the railroad company had posted bulletins at various place along the division warning train crews against the practice. He asserted that if it was not stopped, probably the most effective step would be the arrest of an engineer or conductor.

Mayor Fogo instructed council to prepare resolutions hereafter for the installation of new lights, inasmuch as such action means the expenditure of money and, consequently, must go through proper legal steps.

Conditions of sewers in Eighteenth street and Clark avenue and in Third and Riverside were referred to the service director as well as improvement work at the county bridge.

A motion also passed in which the solons pledged co-operation with the city's baseball club by keeping the playing grounds near Eighteenth street clean and providing whatever other protection may be necessary.

Solicitor Luccock announced that franchise negotiations with the telephone company were nearing completion.

A claim against the city, amounting to $30, by Walter Brown, a resident of Newton Falls, who asserted that a tire on his automobile was damaged to that extent by a grating in Tenth and Wood streets, was referred to the solicitor.

WELLSVILLE SOLONS ADOPT STORM SEWER MEASURE

Council Factions Clash Across Table Over Legislation.

Ordinances providing for the construction of a storm sewer in Seventeenth street and the resurfacing of Lisbon road to the city limits were passed by Wellsville council on first readings last night.

The two ordinances, apparently, are tied up together. As counsel factions clashed across the table, members of the group advocating the enactment of the drainage relief measure standing ready to turn thumbs down on the Lisbon street proposal unless backers of the latter project come to their aid in the sewer voting.

Attempts to legislate the two ordinances through have assumed somewhat the aspect of an "East End" and "West End" controversy.

Resolution to place the sewer project on first reading, providing for the construction of a sewer 1,050 feet long, in Seventeenth street to Main and under the railroad tracks to the Ohio river, at a cost estimated at $18,000, was approved with Solon Connor casting the only dissenting vote.

Connor asserted that he felt as he did at first—that the people had turned the sewer proposal down at the polls.

Peters suggested that the city interview the county auditor to determine whether or not an extra quarter mill levy was available and then council could decide the course of action on the sewer.

In response to a query by Swearingen, Solicitor Luccock said that the prospect of getting the quarter mill was a little "shady," but there was some hope, at that.

"Let's throw our cards on the table, face up," demanded Councilman Nicholson, "and put the Lisbon street resurfacing on the same basis as the Seventeenth street sewer." Nicholson objected to economy in one respect and not in another.

At the voting the sewer proposal passed on first reading, with Connor voting against it.

Ordinance for the improvement of Lisbon street then was introduced and on a motion was placed before solons as an emergency measure under suspended rules.

And with the emergency clause in it it went down to defeat by a vote of four to three, Connor, Peters and McLean voting in the affirmative and Reil, Veldman, Swearingen and Nicholson in the negative.

On a motion by Reil, then, the ordinance was re-introduced on first reading and passed with Nicholson voting against it.

As a result, both the sewer and the Lisbon street ordinances were approved on first readings, only, and await action by the solons at subsequent meetings.

PHYSICIAN DESCRIBES WOUND IN ANANIA'S BODY

DR. C. H. BAILEY TESTIFIES AS STATE WITNESS

Clyde Parsons Assisted Rini in Carrying Victim to Bed.

Expert testimony featured the Tuesday afternoon session of the common pleas court trial, at Lisbon, of Salvatore Rini, East Liverpool, and Mrs. Marie Chorgas, his sister-in-law, of Minneapolis, jointly indicted for second degree murder in the death of Pasquale Anania, of Wellsville.

Dr. C. H. Bailey, of East Liverpool, who performed the autopsy over Anania's body, occupied the stand for more than two hours.

Two recesses were taken, the first upon the order of the court and the second at the request of Frank W. Mossman, of Leetonia, a juror, who informed the court of his sudden illness. This recess continued for 20 minutes.

Patrolman Lister on Stand.

Patrolman William Lister of East Liverpool was the first witness called by the state after the luncheon recess. He told of his call to the Rini apartment in the rear of the Euclid hotel on the night of March 22, last, by Dr. Albert J. Michaels, where Anania was lying dead in bed. He testified that other officers came later, and that Rini and Mrs. Chorgas were arrested. When cross-examined by Defense Attorney W. A. O'Grady and handed a broken knife, an exhibit of the state, the witness replied said that he had never seen "that" knife.

"It was the other knife that I saw," the witness declared when he was handed another knife, also broken.

"I asked Rini," Lister said, "if he had another knife and he gave me a penknife," which had been introduced by the state as exhibit No. 3. "I saw a stain on the blade of that knife. "Mrs. Chorgas said to me that she had borrowed the knife from Rini to sharpen a lead pencil."

The witness also said under cross-examination that when he entered the kitchen of the apartment there was raw meat on a table, but that it had an odor, and that it had seemed to have been there for a period of time. "I would not have wanted to have eaten that meat," he explained.

A light top coat, said to have been Anania's was identified by the witness as the coat he saw in the room where the body was lying.

Dr. Bailey Testifies.

When Dr. Bailey was placed on the stand, his testimony was confined to observations during the autopsy upon the body of Anania. He was questioned by Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes.

When the witness was shown the top coat worn by Anania, the coat was identified as one in which a cut in the cloth in the upper front side corresponded with the entrance wound in the left breast of Anania. He said that the wound could have been caused by the blade of the penknife already introduced.

O'Grady then took the witness. O'Grady had obtained a 12-inch office rule, and handing this to the witness, asked him to measure the remaining portion of steel in the two broken kitchen knives and also the blade of the penknife.

"From the character of the penetration, I would say that death could have resulted in two or three minutes," the witness testified.

At this part of the examination a youth, Valentino Crea, was again brought into the court room. He was instructed by O'Grady to bare his left breast, and once again a physician, standing before the jury marked on the flesh with mercurochrome the position of the wounds as they were disclosed upon the left breast of Anania when the autopsy was held.

"Did you or did you not observe other constitutional or social marks that would have lead to death?" O'Grady.

"No."

The witness was then given another knife, one with a broken blade, and was asked if the wound in the left breast of Anania could have been caused by that knife.

"No, it would not," he replied.

"What is alcohol used for?" he was asked.

"As a stimulant and as a food," he answered, "but as the laity understands it, it acts as a stimulant, but it does not always stimulate the heart, but sometimes causes depression."

"The penknife could have caused the wound?" asked Mr. Brookes.

"The condition of the heart and the force of the blow would depress the chest wall downward," was the reply. "The wound was a tapering one." Brookes unbottoned his vest and threw his top coat back over his left shoulder and the witness standing in front of him again explained the position of the wound in the body of Anania. "It was from left to right, and downward," the jury was told.

Chief McDermott Testifies.

Chief of Police Hugh McDermott of East Liverpool, testified that he had had in his possession the penknife, known as state exhibit No. 3, and that he had examined it under the "finger-print glass." McDermott explained this was a powerful glass, and that his examination disclosed a substance on the blade similar to a liquid and also some lint. "I then gave the knife to the prosecuting attorney," the witness said.

When the penknife was handed the witness, he said that some of the substance had disappeared and some of the lint was absent.

"Did you have the knife examined by any one?" O'Grady asked.

"I never had the knife examined as I gave it to the prosecutor," he replied.

Blue Serge Coat Introduced.

Under direct examination by Assistant Prosecutor Bauknecht, Captain of Police Mason Conley testified that after being summoned to the Rini apartment he had talked with Rini and Mrs. Chorgas.

"I asked her wath happened?" Conley said." and she said 'Patsy said he was cutting meat and the knife slipped and he cut himself.'

A blue serge coat was then introduced as Exhibit No. 4 by the state.

After the coat was identified, Conley said: "I found the coat about 20 feet west of the building in the vacant lot, and about 15 feet north in the lot from the alley shortly after 11 o'clock that night. When I talked with Rini about the coat, he said it was in the kitchen on a chair or hanging up."

"Anania was lying on the bed in the little back bedroom," the witness said under cross-examination by O'Grady. "I did not talk with Rini at the apartment. When I arrived there he was already under arrest.

"I talked with Mrs. Chorgas and she said, 'Patsy said he did it.' Mrs. Chorgas was sitting at the foot of a folding bed or davenport in the larger room at the time I was talking with her and had been reading a magazine. She told me that Rini had been in bed."

Clyde Parsons Called.

During the testimony of Clyde Parsons, it was disclosed that it was he and Rini who had carried the body of Anania from the bathroom to the little bedroom in the Rini apartment. The witness was under direct examination by Brookes, when he explained that he had been informed that someone in the bathroom was ill, and that he took a glass of soda and water into the bathroom. He testified he saw Anania sitting there. He declared that Rini had opened the bathroom door for him, and that Rini had said to his "' Patsy is stubborn,' and that he 'wouldn't take anything when he is that way.'"

"I suggested to Rini that he call a physician," Parsons said, "and then Rini asked me if I would help carry Anania into the bedroom. I took Anania by the ankles, and Rini took him by the head and shoulders, and in that position we carried Anania into the little bedroom and placed him on the bed.

"After we laid him on the bed I got a mirror and held it over his mouth and nose to observe whether or not he was breathing. Rini then went after a doctor, and I left the place before Dr. Michaels arrived."

Under cross-examination by O'Grady, Parsons testified that after the body of Anania had been carried into the bedroom, he said to Mrs. Chorgas, "I believe he is dead, but she repield, 'No, I don't think so, I have seen him like that lots.'"

"Didn't Rini say to you, 'He looks better now, there is more color in his face?'" Parson was asked by O'Grady.

"No, sir."

"Did you say he was dead?"

"No, sir."

"Did Rini say to you he didn't want a doctor because Patsy didn't want one?"

"No, sir."

"Why did you start to give Patsy some soda and water?"

"Because I thought he had been drinking."

Mother Identifies Clothing.

Mrs. Ralph Anania, mother of the dead man, was then called to the witness stand by O'Grady.

O'Grady asked the witness to identify three articles of clothing that had been previously introduced by the state as having belonged to her son.

Mrs. Anania looked at the clothing and sobbed "O, Patsy!" For several moments she was in tears.

"I'm sorry that I was compelled to recall you to the stand," O'Grady said.

Mrs. Anania then left the stand, with the prosecutor accompanying her to her seat where she again wept.

Felix Anania is Witness.

Felix Anania, the next witness placed on the stand by the state, was examined briefly by Brookes. He admitted that he was an uncle of Patsy Anania, and when he was handed a broken kitchen knife marked exhibit No. 1, he identified it as the one he found under a small dresser in the bed room of the Rini apartment. He testified that he gave the knife to Patrolman McFarland at East Liverpool.

O'Grady, cross-examining, read to him from the record of the witness' testimony at the hearing of application for bail held before Judge Lodge Riddle.

Anania admitted that he gave such testimony.

"I asked you if you had a knife?" O'Grady said.

"I found a knife," the witness replied. "You asked if I found a knife in the vacant lot in the rear of the hotel and I said no. I found the knife on the floor under the dresser in the small bedroom."

"You have taken an interest in this case?"

"Yes, I have."

"You've interviewed some witnesses for the prosecutor?"

"Yes, some."

"You talk to Bessie Allison Johnson?"

"Yes."

"Didn't you say to her that you would take Rini's body and grind it up and sell it to the public?"

"I did not."

"Or words to that effect?"

"No, sir."

"You suggested to Rini to stay away from Patsy, and didn't you know that Patsy had a date with Mrs. Chorgas that night?"

"I did not."

"You remember a trip you made during the Wallen trial when you took Rini and Mrs. Chorgas from Lisbon to East Liverpool?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Rini were peeved because Mrs. Chorgas didn't go home with them."

"Didn't you repeat to Rini to stay away from Patsy?"

"I've told Rini to stay away from Patsy."

"What is your business?"

"I've been in the contracting business, but I have been ill during the greater part of the winter," the witness replied.

The witness then under re-direct examination by Brookes declared that his nephew had given Rini money.

Dr. Bailey was then called to the stand by the defense, and under cross-examination by Attorney Raymond Knepper was asked if he knew how long the blade of the broken kitchen knife was, that had been introduced as exhibit 1 by the state.

It was suggested by the state in an objection that the witness could have no means of knowing.

DONAHEY KILLS ONE AND SIGNS SEVEN BILLS

Land Title Registration Fee Increase Plan Vetoed.

MARSHALL AUTHOR

Governor Will Permit Dearmond Measure to Become Law.

COLUMBUS, O., May 4.—Vetoing the bill, by Representative L. L. Marshall, Cleveland, which provided for increased fees to be charged for registration of land titles and examination of records, Governor Vic Donahey today attached his approving signature to seven legislative measures and announced his intention of permitting the Dearmond bill, authorizing abandonment, for canal purposes, of that portion of the Miami and Erie canal between Middletown and Cincinnati, to become a law without his signature.

To date, Governor Donahey has vetoed 24 measures passed at the present session of the Ohio legislature.

Measures approved by the governor today are: The Morton bill, giving county commissioners power during thawing season to reduce the legally authorized truck loads 50 per cent; the Creighton-Anderson bill, providing that persons convicted of driving an auto while intoxicated may be prohibited from driving for six months or a year; the Emmons-Bellinger bill, relative to the division of funds and relative to the division of funds and indebtedness when territory is annexed to a municipal corporation; the Streicher bill, amending the Toledo municipal court act; the Snow bill, correcting a minor error in the law relating to wills executed in other states; the Penny bill, strengthening the optometry law, and the Cross bill, amending the Dayton municipal court act.

Bills Signed Monday.

Announcing his veto of the Marshall bill, Governor Donahey pointed out that increased fees provided for by the bill "would amount to 100 per cent of the rate as it now exists, or even more."

Governor Donahey late Monday vetoed three bills bills, signed two and permitted one to become a law without his signature.

The measures vetoed are: The Johnson bill, requiring publication in newspapers of financial statements by county auditors and by township treasurers annually; the Abele bill, providing for a creation of a police court in the village of Bratenahl, Cuyahoga county, and the Bustard bill, providing for establishment of a county planning department for Cuyahoga county.

The governor signed the Chappelear bill, increasing the pay of the state law librarian from $2,500 to $3,000 a year, and the Mooney bill, authorizing the state highway department to improve roads to state forests and game preserves.

The Evans bill, providing for the pensioning or insuring of public library employes, was permitted to become a law without the governor's signature.

Gray Accuses Woman

powders in Henri's in June, 1926?

Counsel for Mrs. Snyder objected and was sustained.

Gray was then asked to tell about a meeting with her in June, 1926, at the Waldorf.

"Luke had brought over two bottles of rye and two vials of some kind of sleeping powder, so she said. I drank the rye. She asked me to try out these powders to see what effect they'd have on me. I asked her if they were poison and she said no. I tried the powders from both bottles and I didn't know much what happened until 8 the next morning."

Q. Just how did you feel after taking the powders? A. My brain was dazed and numb.

Gray said he took the powders about 5:30 in the afternoon. He said she called him up about 8:30 o'clock the next morning and asked him how he felt.

"I said I felt terrible," he said. "She said: 'Did you know you left me downstairs last night?' I said No. She had driven me around in an automobile most of the night. Then she remarked that the powders were potent enough for a good use. I agreed they were potent enough."

Q. What did she say then? A. Are you going home, she inquired. I said no. I felt too terrible.

Gray said he called him again about noon.

Q. What did she say then? A. She inquired how I felt. "Somewhat better," I replied. I said I was going home, although I was in a daze.

Tells About Powders.

Mrs. Snyder did not look at Gray as he told about the powders. She sat with her head bowed and appeared listless and disinteresting.

Gray then testified he met Mrs. Snyder "five or six times" at the Waldorf in September, 1926.

He testified she said she was going to do away with "the governor." I told her I thought she was crazy and ought to have her head examined. I asked her how she planned to do it. She said she tried out the powders on him once in prune whip and they had no effect. She said she would try gas. I told her such a scheme was totally out of the question and that she did not know what she was doing."

Q. What else did she say? A. Well, she brought up the question of her cousin's divorce and she said she wanted to get a divorce.

Q. What else did she say? A. She said she planned to see a doctor as she was having considerable trouble with her heart and at times would faint away.

Planned Motor Trip.

Gray said he suggested to Mrs. Snyder that a trip of some kind would help her. He had a new car and offered to take her on a tour upstate.

"I though she might forget her plan," he said.

He said she asked him why he got a new car, saying "you have mine, haven't you?" he replied that he was capable of buying his own cars.

She agreed to go on the trip, he related, and told her mother she was going away with friends of hers on a Canadian trip.

Gray said he told her to get a divorce. She replied, he said, that she had no evidence against him. He suggested Snyder be "framed" just like her cousin's husband was "framed." She said, "no," Gray related.

Gray said they talked about a trip they were to make and that Mrs. Snyder told him a man wanted to go along with her, but she refused. "She said," testified Gray, "that this man had given her money the first time she met him.

In October, 1926, Gray saw Mrs. Snyder "many times," he testified. Once, she told him she had an engagement to meet her cousin, Ethel, to arrange the divorce matter. He quoted her as saying she had another tilt with "the old crab" and had left home in a huff.

Hudson Valley Trip.

Later that October they met in Newark. Gray said she told him "everything was fixed at home," that her husband had consented to her leaving and that her mother was going to take their child.

Gray said he and Mrs. Snyder drove through the Hudson valley to Newburgh and then to Kingston, N. Y. He quoted her saying that "this was her first moneymoon." At Kingston, he related, they had many drinks and didn't get out of there for a week.

He then told of his trips to Kingston, Albany, Troy and Schenectady.

Then followed stories of visits to Amsterdam, Gloversville, Boonesville, Watertown, Syracuse and Binghamton, N. Y., and Scranton, Pa.

Tells of "Knockout Drops."

Gray declared that while he and Mrs. Snyder were at Scranton, he told her he could not keep up the pace they were going, as he had work to do. They went to Stroudsburg, Pa., Newark, N. J., and then to Orange, where he said he repaid the money she loaned him.

They met at Henri's restaurant in New York again in October, and again, she told him of quarrels with her husband, and asked him to find out about "knockout drops" for her. She later explained to him in her home how she had kicked off the gas-pipe as her husband lay sleeping, he said, but when she returned to the house Snyder was walking in the street to get air. Mrs. Snyder told him that she had tried to kill her husband before; that she couldn't stand him any longer, and was determined to get rid of him. Gray said he told her she was "absolutely insane." Describing another attempt which he said Mrs. Snyder told him of, Gray said she declared she took him liquor to drink while he was working in his garage with the car motor running, "nothing happened."

Mrs. Snyder put "powders" which she obtained from a druggist into small bottles of liquor which Gray had brought her at her request, the witness said.

Exchanged Christmas Presents.

In November, Gray said, he met Mrs. Snyder "six or seven times" she told him she had definitely decided to "drop the divorce plan." He said he learned the ingredients of "knockout drops" and told Mrs. Snyder what they were, at her request, but refused to obtain them for her, as she asked. She administered them twice, and on the second occasion, also knocked off the gas pipe, Gray said she told him, but without results.

He and Mrs. Snyder exchanged Christmas presents, he said, later, she asked him if he knew how to shoot a revolver, and he said he did not.

Again and again Gray declared that Mrs. Snyder had implored him to devise a plan of killing her husband but that he steadily rejected the idea. She gas, powders and knockout drops—to made several ineffectual attempts—by kill him, he asserted, and finally urged him to shoot him.

"No," he declared, he said, "I never shot a gun in my life and I'm not going to begin with murder."

He said he told her the murder plan was getting to be an obsession with her.

Snyder Became Suspicious.

Mrs. Snyder told him that she believed her husband was growing suspicious, he said. She had heard that her husband was going out to lunch with another girl, and she tried to catch him, visiting a cafe, but was unsuccessful, the witness declared.

After Christmas, Mrs. Snyder called Gray, he said, to her home to see the Christmas tree.

"She asked me if I couldn't help her by shooting her husband," Gray testified. "I told her no—absolutely no. I never had shot a gun in my life and I wasn't going to start in by murder. I told her if she was going to get rid of her husband she would have to do it all alone." When she met him against she said she was having trouble keeping up her husband's insurance, and he advised her to drop it, but she refused, saying she would lose money if she did.

Again in January, she asked him to help get rid of her husband, Gray said, and he told her "it was becoming an obsession with her," he said. Court adjourned for luncheon, as the introduction of letters purporting to have been received by Gray during several months, was blocked by objections from counsel for Mrs. Snyder. Gray was still on the stand.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 4.—The momentum of Tuesday's final spurt in speculative stocks carried prices of most of the active issues to higher levels at the beginning to trading today. The rails and motors continued their position of leadership, though the California oil stocks were quick to respond to the price advances of 4 to 6 cents a gallon in retail gasoline.

Encouraged by the brilliant forward price movements of the speculative favorites and the demand for stocks from outside sources, the bullish interests bid up the well-known stocks in an effort to force short covering. General Motors carried its spectacular advance to a new peak at 197, while numerous low-priced motor stocks like Paige, Detroit and Moon sold up a point or more.

Considering the extent of the flood ravages, the decline of about 6,000 cars in weekly freight loadings was considered a favorable commentary on transportation records in the country as a whole.

The new 22,000-barrel daily increase in crude oil production was in line with estimates, and the end of the over-production period is not in sight. Call money was unchanged at 4 per cent.

Cotton gained 12 to 15 points in the early trading and grain was firm.

GAS STATION ROBBERS FLEE

Attempt to Loot Sixth Street Place is Frustrated.

An unsuccessful attempt was made early today to loot the Diamond Parking and Service station, located on the city lot in West Sixth street.

At 3:30 a. m. Patrolman James Haley, on duty in the Diamond, noticed an automobile drive into the parking lot. He hurried through Summit lane to the rear of the lot.

In the meantime one of the two men in the car had smashed the glass in the rear door of the station and turned the key in the lock. His confederate was standing on the outside when he saw Haley. He warned his companion, and both men escaped in the machine. Because of the dirty condition of the license plates, Haley was unable to obtain the number of the car.

Approximately $40 in change was hidden in the filling station.

DR. C. H. BAILEY TESTIFIES AS STATE WITNESS

Clyde Parsons Assisted Rini in Carrying Victim to Bed.

Expert testimony featured the Tuesday afternoon session of the common pleas court trial, at Lisbon, of Salvatore Rini, East Liverpool, and Mrs. Marie Chorgas, his sister-in-law, of Minneapolis, jointly indicted for second degree murder in the death of Pasquale Anania, of Wellsville.

Dr. C. H. Bailey, of East Liverpool, who performed the autopsy over Anania's body, occupied the stand for more than two hours.

Two recesses were taken, the first upon the order of the court and the second at the request of Frank W. Mossman, of Leetonia, a juror, who informed the court of his sudden illness. This recess continued for 20 minutes.

Patrolman Lister on Stand.

Patrolman William Lister of East Liverpool was the first witness called by the state after the luncheon recess. He told of his call to the Rini apartment in the rear of the Euclid hotel on the night of March 22, last, by Dr. Albert J. Michaels, where Anania was lying dead in bed. He testified that other officers came later, and that Rini and Mrs. Chorgas were arrested.

When cross-examined by Defense Attorney W. A. O'Grady and handed a broken knife, an exhibit of the state, the witness replied said that he had never seen "that" knife.

"It was the other knife that I saw," the witness declared when he was handed another knife, also broken.

"I asked Rini," Lister said, "if he had another knife and he gave me a penknife," which had been introduced by the state as exhibit No. 3. "I saw a stain on the blade of that knife. "Mrs. Chorgas said to me that she had borrowed the knife from Rini to sharpen a lead pencil."

The witness also said under cross-examination that when he entered the kitchen of the apartment there was raw meat on a table, but that it had an odor, and that it had seemed to have been there for a period of time. "I would not have wanted to have eaten that meat," he explained.

A light top coat, said to have been Anania's was identified by the witness as the coat he saw in the room where the body was lying.

Dr. Bailey Testifies.

When Dr. Bailey was placed on the stand, his testimony was confined to observations during the autopsy upon the body of Anania. He was questioned by Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes.

When the witness was shown the top coat worn by Anania, the coat was identified as one in which a cut in the cloth in the upper front side corresponded with the entrance wound in the left breast of Anania. He said that the wound could have been caused by the blade of the pen knife already introduced.

O'Grady then took the witness. O'Grady had obtained a 12-inch office rule, and handing this to the witness, asked him to measure the remaining portion of steel in the two broken kitchen knives and also the blade of the penknife.

"From the character of the penetration, I would say that death could have resulted in two or three minutes," the witness testified.

At this part of the examination a youth, Valentino Crea, was again brought into the court room. He was instructed by O'Grady to bare his left breast, and once again a physician, standing before the jury marked on the flesh with mercurochrome the position of the wounds as they were disclosed upon the left breast of Anania when the autopsy was held.

"Did you or did you not observe other constitutional or social marks that would have lead to death?" O'Grady.

"No."

The witness was then given another knife, one with a broken blade, and was asked if the wound in the left breast of Anania could have been caused by that knife.

"No, it would not," he replied.

"What is alcohol used for?" he was asked.

"As a stimulant and as a food," he answered, "but as the laity understands it, it acts as a stimulant, but it does not always stimulate the heart, but sometimes causes depression."

"The penknife could have caused the wound?" asked Mr. Brookes.

"The condition of the heart and the force of the blow would depress the chest wall downward," was the reply. "The wound was a tapering one." Brookes unbottoned his vest and threw his top coat back over his left shoulder and the witness standing in front of him again explained the position of the wound in the body of Anania. "It was from left to right, and downward," the jury was told.

Chief McDermott Testifies.

Chief of Police Hugh McDermott of East Liverpool, testified that he had had in his possession the penknife, known as state exhibit No. 3, and that he had examined it under the "finger-print glass." McDermott explained this was a powerful glass, and that his examination disclosed a substance on the blade similar to a liquid and also some lint. "I then gave the knife to the prosecuting attorney," the witness said.

When the penknife was handed the witness, he said that some of the substance had disappeared and some of the lint was absent.

"Did you have the knife examined by any one?" O'Grady asked.

"I never had the knife examined as I gave it to the prosecutor," he replied.

Blue Serge Coat Introduced.

Under direct examination by Assistant Prosecutor Baukhecht, Captain of Police Mason Conley testified that after being summoned to the Rini apartment he had talked with Rini and Mrs. Chorgas.

"I asked her wath happened?" Conley said," and she said 'Patsy said he was cutting meat and the knife slipped and he cut himself,'

A blue serge coat was then introduced as Exhibit No. 4 by the state.

After the coat was identified, Conley said: "I found the coat about 20 feet west of the building in the vacant lot, and about 15 feet north in the lot from the alley shortly after 11 o'clock that night. When I talked with Rini about the coat, he said it was in the kitchen on a chair or hanging up."

"Anania was lying on the bed in the little back bedroom," the witness said under cross-examination by O'Grady. "I did not talk with Rini at the apartment. When I arrived there he was already under arrest.

"I talked with Mrs. Chorgas and she said, 'Patsy said he did it.' Mrs. Chorgas was sitting at the foot of a folding bed or davenport in the larger room at the time I was talking with her and had been reading a magazine. She told me that Rini had been in bed."

Clyde Parsons Called.

During the testimony of Clyde Parsons, it was disclosed that it was he and Rini who had carried the body of Anania from the bathroom to the little bedroom in the Rini apartment. The witness was under direct examination by Brookes, when he explained that he had been informed that someone in the bathroom was ill, and that he took a glass of soda and water into the bathroom. He testified he saw Anania sitting there. He declared that Rini had opened the bathroom door for him, and that Rini had said to his "' Patsy is stubborn,' and that he 'wouldn't take anything when he is that way.'"

"I suggested to Rini that he call a physician," Parsons said, "and then Rini asked me if I would help carry Anania into the bedroom. I took Anania by the ankles, and Rini took him by the head and shoulders, and in that position we carried Anania into the little bedroom and placed him on the bed.

"After we laid him on the bed I got a mirror and held it over his mouth and nose to observe whether or not he was breathing. Rini then went after a doctor, and I left the place before Dr. Michaels arrived."

Under cross-examination by O'Grady, Parsons testified that after the body of Anania had been carried into the bedroom, he said to Mrs. Chorgas, "I believe he is dead, but she repield, 'No, I don't think so, I have seen him like that lots.'"

"Didn't Rini say to you, 'He looks better now, there is more color in his face?'" Parson was asked by O'Grady.

"No, sir."

"Did you say he was dead?"

"No, sir."

"Did Rini say to you he didn't want a doctor because Patsy didn't want one?"

"No, sir."

"Why did you start to give Patsy some soda and water?"

"Because I thought he had been drinking."

Mother Identifies Clothing.

Mrs. Ralph Anania, mother of the dead man, was then called to the witness stand by O'Grady.

O'Grady asked the witness to identify three articles of clothing that had been previously introduced by the state as having belonged to her son.

Mrs. Anania looked at the clothing and sobbed "O, Patsy!" For several moments she was in tears.

"I'm sorry that I was compelled to recall you to the stand," O'Grady said.

Mrs. Anania then left the stand, with the prosecutor accompanying her to her seat where she again wept.

Felix Anania is Witness.

Felix Anania, the next witness placed on the stand by the state, was examined briefly by Brookes. He admitted that he was an uncle of Patsy Anania, and when he was handed a broken kitchen knife marked exhibit No. 1, he identified it as the one he found under a small dresser in the bed room of the Rini apartment. He testified that he gave the knife to Patrolman McFarland at East Liverpool.

O'Grady, cross-examining, read to him from the record of the witness' testimony at the hearing of application for bail held before Judge Lodge Riddle.

Anania admitted that he gave such testimony.

"I asked you if you had a knife?" O'Grady said.

"I found a knife," the witness replied. "You asked if I found a knife in the vacant lot in the rear of the hotel and I said no. I found the knife on the floor under the dresser in the small bedroom."

"You have taken an interest in this case?"

"Yes, I have."

"You've interviewed some witnesses for the prosecutor?"

"Yes, some."

"You talk to Bessie Allison Johnson?"

"Yes."

"Didn't you say to her that you would take Rini's body and grind it up and sell it to the public?"

"I did not."

"Or words to that effect?"

"No, sir."

"You suggested to Rini to stay away from Patsy, and didn't you know that Patsy had a date with Mrs. Chorgas that night?"

"I did not."

"You remember a trip you made during the Wallen trial when you took Rini and Mrs. Chorgas from Lisbon to East Liverpool?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Rini were peeved because Mrs. Chorgas didn't go home with them."

"Didn't you repeat to Rini to stay away from Patsy?"

"I've told Rini to stay away from Patsy."

"What is your business?"

"I've been in the contracting business, but I have been ill during the greater part of the winter," the witness replied.

The witness then under redirect examination by Brookes declared that his nephew had given Rini money.

Dr. Bailey was then called to the stand by the defense, and under cross-examination by Attorney Raymond Knepper was asked if he knew how long the blade of the broken kitchen knife was, that had been introduced as exhibit 1 by the state.

It was suggested by the state in an objection that the witness could have no means of knowing.

Governor Will Permit Dearmond Measure to Become Law.

COLUMBUS, O., May 4.—Vetoing the bill, by Representative L. L. Marshall, Cleveland, which provided for increased fees to be charged for registration of land titles and examination of records, Governor Vic Donahey today attached his approving signature to seven legislative measures and announced his intention of permitting the Dearmond bill, authorizing abandonment, for canal purposes, of that portion of the Miami and Erie canal between Middletown and Cincinnati, to become a law without his signature.

To date, Governor Donahey has vetoed 24 measures passed at the present session of the Ohio legislature.

Measures approved by the governor today are: The Morton bill, giving county commissioners power during thawing season to reduce the legally authorized truck loads 50 per cent; the Creighton-Anderson bill, providing that persons convicted of driving an auto while intoxicated may be prohibited from driving for six months or a year; the Emmons-Bellinger bill, relative to the division of funds and relative to the division of funds and indebtedness when territory is annexed to a municipal corporation; the Streicher bill, amending the Toledo municipal court act; the Snow bill, correcting a minor error in the law relating to wills executed in other states; the Penny bill, strengthening the optometry law, and the Cross bill, amending the Dayton municipal court act.

Bills Signed Monday.

Announcing his veto of the Marshall bill, Governor Donahey pointed out that increased fees provided for by the bill "would amount to 100 per cent of the rate as it now exists, or even more."

Governor Donahey late Monday vetoed three bills bills, signed two and permitted one to become a law without his signature.

The measures vetoed are: The Johnson bill, requiring publication in newspapers of financial statements by county auditors and by township treasurers annually; the Abele bill, providing for a creation of a police court in the village of Bratenahl, Cuyahoga county, and the Bustard bill, providing for establishment of a county planning department for Cuyahoga county.

The governor signed the Chappelear bill, increasing the pay of the state law librarian from $2,500 to $3,000 a year, and the Mooney bill, authorizing the state highway department to improve roads to state forests and game preserves.

The Evans bill, providing for the pensioning or insuring of public library employes, was permitted to become a law without the governor's signature.

Gray Accuses Woman

powders in Henri's in June, 1926?

Counsel for Mrs. Snyder objected and was sustained.

Gray was then asked to tell about a meeting with her in June, 1926, at the Waldorf.

"Luke had brought over two bottles of rye and two vials of some kind of sleeping powder, so she said. I drank the rye. She asked me to try out these powders to see what effect they'd have on me. I asked her if they were poison and she said no. I tried the powders from both bottles and I didn't know much what happened until 8 the next morning."

Q. Just how did you feel after taking the powders? A. My brain was dazed and numb.

Gray said he took the powders about 5:30 in the afternoon. He said she called him up about 8:30 o'clock the next morning and asked him how he felt.

"I said I felt terrible," he said. "She said: 'Did you know you left me downstairs last night?' I said No. She had driven me around in an automobile most of the night. Then she remarked that the powders were potent enough for a good use. I agreed they were potent enough."

Q. What did she say them? A. Are you going home, she inquired. I said no. I felt too terrible.

Gray said he called him again about noon.

Q. What did she say then? A. She inquired how I felt. "Somewhat better," I replied. I said I was going home, although I was in a daze.

Tells About Powders.

Mrs. Snyder did not look at Gray as he told about the powders. She sat with her head bowed and appeared listless and disinterested.

Gray then testified he met Mrs. Snyder "five or six times" at the Waldorf in September, 1926.

He testified she said she was going to do away with "the governor." I told her I thought she was crazy and ought to have her head examined. I asked her how she planned to do it. She said she tried out the powders on him once in prune whip and they had no effect. She said she would try gas. I told her such a scheme was totally out of the question and that she did not know what she was doing."

Q. What else did she say? A. Well, she brought up the question of her cousin's divorce and she said she wanted to get a divorce.

Q. What else did she say? A. She said she planned to see a doctor as she was having considerable trouble with her heart and at times would faint away.

Planned Motor Trip.

Gray said he suggested to Mrs. Snyder that a trip of some kind would help her. He had a new car and offered to take her on a tour upstate.

"I though she might forget her plan," he said.

He said she asked him why he got a new car, saying "you have mine, haven't you?" he replied that he was capable of buying his own cars.

She agreed to go on the trip, he related, and told her mother she was going away with friends of hers on a Canadian trip.

Gray said he told her to get a divorce. She replied, he said, that she had no evidence against him. He suggested Snyder be "framed" just like her cousin's husband was "framed." She said, "no," Gray related.

Gray said they talked about a trip they were to make and that Mrs. Snyder told him a man wanted to go along with her, but she refused. "She said," testified Gray, "that this man had given her money the first time she met him.

In October, 1926, Gray saw Mrs. Snyder "many times," he testified. Once, she told him she had an engagement to meet her cousin, Ethel, to arrange the divorce matter. He quoted her as saying she had another tilt with "the old crab" and had left home in a huff.

Hudson Valley Trip.

Later that October they met in Newark. Gray said she told him "everything was fixed at home," that her husband had consented to her leaving and that her mother was going to take their child.

Gray said he and Mrs. Snyder drove through the Hudson valley to Newburgh and then to Kingston, N. Y. He quoted her saying that "this was her first moneymoon." At Kingston, he related, they had many drinks and didn't get out of there for a week.

He then told of his trips to Kingston, Albany, Troy and Schenectady.

Then followed stories of visits to Amsterdam, Gloversville, Boonesville, Watertown, Syracuse and Binghamton, N. Y., and Scranton, Pa.

Tells of "Knockout Drops."

Gray declared that while he and Mrs. Snyder were at Scranton, he told her he could not keep up the pace they were going, as he had work to do. They went to Stroudsburg, Pa., Newark, N. J., and then to Orange, where he said he repaid the money she loaned him.

They met at Henri's restaurant in New York again in October, and again, she told him of quarrels with her husband, and asked him to find out about "knockout drops" for her. She later explained to him in her home how she had kicked off the gas-pipe as her husband lay sleeping, he said, but when she returned to the house Snyder was walking in the street to get air. Mrs. Snyder told him that she had tried to kill her husband before; that she couldn't stand him any longer, and was determined to get rid of him. Gray said he told her she was "absolutely insane." Describing another attempt which he said Mrs. Snyder told him of, Gray said she declared she took him liquor to drink while he was working in his garage with the car motor running, "nothing happened."

Mrs. Snyder put "powders" which she obtained from a druggist into small bottles of liquor which Gray had brought her at her request, the witness said.

Exchanged Christmas Presents.

In November, Gray said, he met Mrs. Snyder "six or seven times" she told him she had definitely decided to "drop the divorce plan." He said he learned the ingredients of "knockout drops" and told Mrs. Snyder what they were, at her request, but refused to obtain them for her, as she asked. She administered them twice, and on the second occasion, also knocked off the gas pipe, Gray said she told him, but without results.

He and Mrs. Snyder exchanged Christmas presents, he said, later, she asked him if he knew how to shoot a revolver, and he said he did not.

Again and again Gray declared that Mrs. Snyder had implored him to devise a plan of killing her husband but that he steadily rejected the idea. She gas, powders and knockout drops—to made several ineffectual attempts—by kill him, he asserted, and finally urged him to shoot him.

"No," he declared, he said, "I never shot a gun in my life and I'm not going to begin with murder."

He said he told her the murder plan was getting to be an obsession with her.

Snyder Became Suspicious.

Mrs. Snyder told him that she believed her husband was growing suspicious, he said. She had heard that her husband was going out to lunch with another girl, and she tried to catch him, visiting a cafe, but was unsuccessful, the witness declared.

After Christmas, Mrs. Snyder called Gray, he said, to her home to see the Christmas tree.

"She asked me if I couldn't help her by shooting her husband," Gray testified. "I told her no—absolutely no. I never had shot a gun in my life and I wasn't going to start in by murder. I told her if she was going to get rid of her husband she would have to do it all alone." When she met him against she said she was having trouble keeping up her husband's insurance, and he advised her to drop it, but she refused, saying she would lose money if she did.

Again in January, she asked him to help get rid of her husband, Gray said, and he told her "it was becoming an obsession with her," he said. Court adjourned for luncheon, as the introduction of letters purporting to have been received by Gray during several months, was blocked by objections from counsel for Mrs. Snyder. Gray was still on the stand.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 4.—The momentum of Tuesday's final spurt in speculative stocks carried prices of most of the active issues to higher levels at the beginning to trading today. The rails and motors continued their position of leadership, though the California oil stocks were quick to respond to the price advances of 4 to 6 cents a gallon in retail gasoline.

Encouraged by the brilliant forward price movements of the speculative favorites and the demand for stocks from outside sources, the bullish interests bid up the well-known stocks in an effort to force short covering. General Motors carried its spectacular advance to a new peak at 197, while numerous low-priced motor stocks like Paige, Detroit and Moon sold up a point or more.

Considering the extent of the flood ravages, the decline of about 6,000 cars in weekly freight loadings was considered a favorable commentary on transportation records in the country as a whole.

The new 22,000-barrel daily increase in crude oil production was in line with estimates, and the end of the over-production period is not in sight. Call money was unchanged at 4 per cent.

Cotton gained 12 to 15 points in the early trading and grain was firm.

GAS STATION ROBBERS FLEE

Attempt to Loot Sixth Street Place is Frustrated.

An unsuccessful attempt was made early today to loot the Diamond Parking and Service station, located on the city lot in West Sixth street.

At 3:30 a. m. Patrolman James Haley, on duty in the Diamond, noticed an automobile drive into the parking lot. He hurried through Summit lane to the rear of the lot.

In the meantime one of the two men in the car had smashed the glass in the rear door of the station and turned the key in the lock. His confederate was standing on the outside when he saw Haley. He warned his companion, and both men escaped in the machine. Because of the dirty condition of the license plates, Haley was unable to obtain the number of the car.

Approximately $40 in change was hidden in the filling station.

The marriage of Princess Ileana and King Boris has been reported previously and Princess Ileana has even been quoted as stating that she admired King Boris "as a friend."

The courage of King Boris during an attack made upon his car by bandits several years ago is said to have aroused Princess Ileana to great admiration for him, and at that time it was reported that she had expressed her willingness to marry him.

the pigment test tells you the house paint to use . .

SEEING is believing! We were undecided ourselves about what made good house paint until we saw the pigment test. Look at the black panel below! Note that of the six pigments used in house paint only white lead and white zinc—the pigments used in Devoe Lead and Zinc Paint—form opaque white films that completely cover and hide the surface. The others all form translucent films. That's why Devoe covers better, spreads farther, gives greater protection.

WARNS AGAINST 'GYP' SOLICITOR

County Motor Club Statement Refers to Alleged Fleecing.

The Columbiana County Motor club, through E. M. Diehl, secretary, today issued a warning against the operations of so-called "gyp" solicitors, who, it is claimed, recently made several attempts to fleece Columbiana county business men and motorists through fradulent schemes.

The club's statement follows:

"This is the season of the year when the "gyps" are most active. Heavy travel time is their harvest time and it behooves car owners, hotels, garages and service stations to beware.

"The 'gyp' is often a consumate artist. He presents himself in a thousand varieties. Today he is selling alleged service contracts, probably for two years, with a discount to boot. Tomorrow, he is selling alleged insurance, which if you read the small print, definitely says: 'This is not a policy of insurance.' And the next day he is gone to new pastures to sell official signs to hotels, garages and service stations.

"At the present time the American Automobile association has on file the names of 125 of these fake concerns. They thrive on the reputation of bonafide motor clubs, often using a fake emblem and trade mark.

"The main reason why they are able to continue levying a toll of some $30,000,000 a year is because the average car owner has not yet learned that he can protect himself, if, before yielding to the blandishments of the high-pressure salesmen of 'gypdom,' he consults the nearest motor club who make it their business to keep a file of 'gyps' on hand."

NEW YORK, May 4.—Among men who are presumed to know their rolled oats, a quiet but effective play was well under way today on an outsider to win both the Preakness on Monday and the Kentucky Derby at the classic downs five days later. The saps, they say, are rushing to the window to take the short money on obvious choices but saps are notorious for the fact that they never collect anything but damages, mostly to the roll. Besides, it is contended, this is not the year for public choices, a statement that is highly credible in view of the fact that only two favorites have galloped home at the downs in the last twenty-four years.

This, therefore, is the so-called wise money and a lot of it has gone on J. N. Camien's Hydromel; so much of it, in fact, that the colt's price has receded from 150 to 1 to something like 40 to 1 in the winter books. This fact, of course, gives rise to the disquieting possibility that, if Hydromel wins, the pay-off may be made in iron washers, something of the sort having happened with Zev four years ago.

But then, many a race course has had eight races in one day—seven on the track and one with the bookie who took your finger bet, so it's all even.

McLean Colt Long Shot.

Anyhow, the boys would have to continue backing Hydromel right up to post time, as they did with Zev, to make such a condition possible. As it is, the play that is certain to go in on Whiskery, Osmond, Scapa Flow, Kiev, Justice F., Rip Rap, J. Fred A and other favorites who don't win would take the curse off the long shot that does win.

The long shot for the Preakness in this section right now is Jock, the E. B. McLean colt. The field for the race at Pimlico numbers 22 at the moment and all of them are Derby eligibles, so we will know more about Churchhill downs on Monday night than on any other, with the possible exception of the following Saturday evening. Whiskery is scheduled to arrive at Pimlico today and will leave for Louisville the day after the Preakness, provided he shows anything. Other good ones at the Preakness will be Scapa Flow, Pandera, Justice F., Rip Rap, Sankari and Sweepster. They also will be sent along to Louisville or left behind, according to the way they run.

The under cover horse of the race is Dolan, of the E. F. Cooney stable. No one knows anything about him, so a lot of the boys are disposed to chance a casual dollar on his nose.

Whiskery and Justice F., however, are the probable choices and will so remain even up to and including the derby if they run well at Pimlico. Whiskery has done everything asked of him so far, running equally well on dry and heavy tracks. As for Justice F., he won the New Orleans handicap and then went west to finish second in the Tia Juana classic. Interference, they say, kept him from winning, so the horse will have plenty of friends until such time as he turns up absent at the pay off.

At the same time, Hydromel's running in Kentucky cannot be overlooked and won't be. He recently stepped the full distance in 2:05 which will win the average derby. While he was about it, he turned the mile in 1:37 1-5 and then nipped the track record for the extra 70 yards by doing 1:42. That kind of running is rather reassuring at odds of 40 to 1.

SOFT BALL TEAMS HOLD FINAL MEET

Eligibility Lists to be Submitted Tonight.

Final arrangements preparatory to the opening of the Review-Tribune Recreation circuit on Monday night will be completed at a meeting of team managers, representatives and officials tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the newspaper offices.

At tonight's session, each team manager will be required to file his eligibility list with league officials.

Each club is limited to 15 players and a manager. Immediately after eligibility lists are submitted tonight, players of each club become permanent members of that club and will not be permitted to change affiliations unless by agreement between managers or in trades.

It is likely also that one or two rule requirements will be stressed, including use of finger mitts by first basemen and catchers.

In practice games thus far it is observed that a majority of both catchers and first sackers disdain the use of mitts, but it is likely the rules committee will make it legal for either player to use a glove if he desires.

It is quite possible also that the committee will stress the regulation that compels catches by defensive fielders to be made only in the fielder's hand, and not against his chest.

The Printers nosed out a 9 to 8 decision over the Y. M. C. A. last night at the playground in a hotly contested extra inning scrap, featured by the performances of the outgardeners on both clubs, chiefly the middle fielders who played hide and seek in among the swings and iron posts in that particular pasture in an effort to snag the drives that came their way. Both clubs made frequent changes in their lineups as candidates tried out for places.

CORDS PLAY HIGH NINE

Riley's New Pitchers to Work in Thursday Contest.

Both of Manager Frank Riley's new pitchers, one a right hander and the other a southpaw twister, will work in tomorrow night's practice clash with the high school ball club at Smith Field.

The two teams are scheduled to go into action at 5:30.

Litscomb, a former Parsons, W. Va., lad, will toe the rubber for the school boys, with the veteran Vanaman catching, against the Superior Cords.

Evans, who worked five innings in Saturday's exhibition with Turk-Nash, will be on the mound for the Superior Cords, with Potts receiving.

There will be no admission charged.

COLUMBIANANS FINISH SECOND

COLUMBIANA, May 4.—Coach Miller's Columbiana High school track team took second honors Saturday at the invitation meet held at Canfield, competing with Lowellville, Poland, Canfield, Boardman and Memorial high of Campbell, the latter securing first place. Curtis Detwiler was the high scorer for Columbiana winning first place in the discus and shot put. The other local points were made as follows: Philip Zellers, first in 50 yd. dash for Freshmen boys; Harrold, 2nd place in 50 yd. dash for High school boys; Hoffman, 3rd in half mile; Harrold, 3rd in 100 yd. dash; Zellers, 1st in 440 yd. dash; Columbiana, 3rd in 440 yd. relay for freshman boys; C. H. S., 1st in 880 yd. relay; Fellers, 1st in broad jump; Fellers, 3rd in discus. The Columbiana boys will go to Lisbon next Saturday to take part in a triangular meet with Wellsville and Lisbon at the county fair grounds.

Rubber footwear made in this country and donned abroad last year had a total value of more than $9,000,000.

MILL TEAM WINS FROM RAILROAD

The Chester American Sheet & Tin Plate plant soft ball club last night took over the Panhandle railroad crew by a count of 10 to 0 at Chester. The mill club had a decisive edge at the plate all the way, connecting frequently with the opposition delivery.

SEEKS HEAVY TITLE VIA BERLIN, ITALY AND N. Y.

Belief is general in New York that Tex Rickard is juggling his heavyweight tourney plans in the hope of pointing Paolino Uzcudun, Spanish heavy, for the semi-final match with Jack Dempsey or the title match with Tunney. Paolino has done little in the U. S. to warrant this, but has socked leading heavies in France, England, Germany, Italy, Cuba, and other parts. Photos above are of Paolino and his leading victims.

STRIBLING BEATEN BY LOUGHRAN

Georgian is Eliminated as Title Contender.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light heavyweight, looms today as the outstanding contender for Jack Delaney's crown. Loughran outpointed Young Stribling in a ten round bout here last night and eliminated the Georgian from the picture.

Loughran won seven of the ten rounds and gained the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges. Although the bout was hard fought, Loughran displayed a superior attack and outboxed the speedy Georgian.

Stribling was fast at the start and landed many clean blows, but as the fight wore on he resorted to his old style of wrestling and holding. Loughran began to solve the Georgian's tricky style and pummeled him with damaging body blows.

Loughran declared after the fight that he "would win the championship within a year," but no lines of worry could be detected on the countenance of Delaney, the champion, who witnessed the fight.

REVISION OF FISH BILL IS SOUGHT

Ohio Sportsmen Would Correct Bad Features of House Bill.

COLUMBUS, O., May 4.—While the organized sportsmen of Ohio had nothing to do with the drafting and presentation of the original bill the League of Ohio Sportsmen today stood ready to offer its good offices and legal advices to correct bad features of House Bill No. 244 which prohibits use of a reel in fishing, sale of crawfish for bait, and which has many other features, it was announced at league headquarters here today. The bill as passed by legislature was drafted by the fish and game department and presented as its measure, said I. S. Myers, league president, Akron, who urged every cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, in an effort to correct the bill.

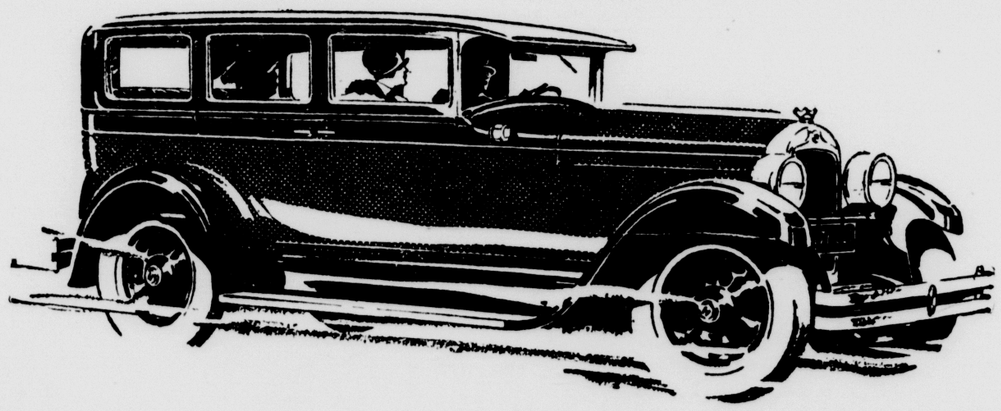

The sportsmen declare that the bill in addition to making it unlawful to use a reel also takes away from the farmer the right to use a trot line, makes sale of frogs in restaurants unlawful, requires children under 18 years of age to buy a license to use a reel, gives alleged special privileges to non-residents, makes it unlawful to take a mussel, and may raise the limit on bass to 30 per day because of ambiguous wording.

The sportsmen advocate stopping of commercial mussel fishing, lower limit on bass, curtailing of sale of live bait, and other conservation measures, but point out that to stop trot lining would be unfair to craftsmen in southern Ohio where these fish, that are bottom feeders, can be taken in no other way and that mussels are their chief bait.

It is doubtful if the legislature will give time to the bill when it returns, or let down the bars to introduction of a redrafted measure. Many sportsmen are asking Gov. Donahey to veto the bill if presented to him in its present form, league officials assert.

Nearly 380,000 automobiles were sent abroad from the United States and Canada last year.

Play Launched On Outsider For Both Preakness And Derby

Winter Book's Price on Hydromel Drops in Face of "Wise" Money

Recession From 150 to 1 to 40 to 1 Gives Rise to Possibility Also That Pay-off May be Made in Iron Washers; E. B. McLean's Colt is Long Shot for Preakness Now.

By Davis J. Walsh

NEW YORK, May 4.—Among men who are presumed to know their roiled oats, a quiet but effective play was well under way today on an outsider to win both the Preakness on Monday and the Kentucky Derby at the classic downs five days later. The saps, they say, are rushing to the window to take the short money on obvious choices but saps are notorious for the fact that they never collect anything but damages, mostly to the roll. Besides, it is contended, this is not the year for public choices, a statement that is highly credible in view of the fact that only two favorites have galloped home at the downs in the last twenty-four years.

This, therefore, is the so-called wise money and a lot of it has gone on J. N. Camien's Hydromel; so much of it, in fact, that the colt's price has receded from 150 to 1 to something like 40 to 1 in the winter books. This fact, of course, gives rise to the disquieting possibility that, if Hydromel wins, the pay-off may be made in iron washers, something of the sort having happened with Zev four years ago.

But then, many a race course has had eight races in one day—seven on the track and one with the bookie who took your finger bet, so it's all even.

McLean Colt Long Shot.

Anyhow, the boys would have to continue backing Hydromel right up to post time, as they did with Zev, to make such a condition possible. As it is, the play that is certain to go in on Whiskery, Osmond, Scapa Flow, Kiev, Justice F., Rip Rap, J. Fred A and other favorites who don't win would take the curse off the long shot that does win.

The long shot for the Preakness in this section right now is Jock, the E. B. McLean colt. The field for the race at Pimlico numbers 22 at the moment and all of them are Derby eligibles, so we will know more about Churchhill downs on Monday night than on any other, with the possible exception of the following Saturday evening. Other good ones at the Preakness will be Scapa Flow, Pandera, Justice F., Rip Rap, Sankari and Sweepster. They also will be sent along to Louisville or left behind, according to the way they run.

The under cover horse of the race is Dolan, of the E. F. Cooney stable. No one knows anything about him, so a lot of the boys are disposed to chance a casual dollar on his nose.

Whiskery and Justice F., however, are the probable choices and will so remain even up to and including the derby if they run well at Pimlico. Whiskery has done everything asked of him so far, running equally well on dry and heavy tracks. As for Justice F., he won the New Orleans handicap and then went west to finish second in the Tia Juana classic. Interference, they say, kept him from winning, so the horse will have plenty of friends until such time as he turns up absent at the pay off.

At the same time, Hydromel's running in Kentucky cannot be overlooked and won't be. He recently stepped the full distance in 2:05 which will win the average derby. While he was about it, he turned the mile in 1:37 1-5 and then nipped the track record for the extra 70 yards by doing 1:42. That kind of running is rather reassuring at odds of 40 to 1.

The bill as passed by legislature was drafted by the fish and game department and presented as its measure, said I. S. Myers, league president, Akron, who urged every cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, in an effort to correct the bill.

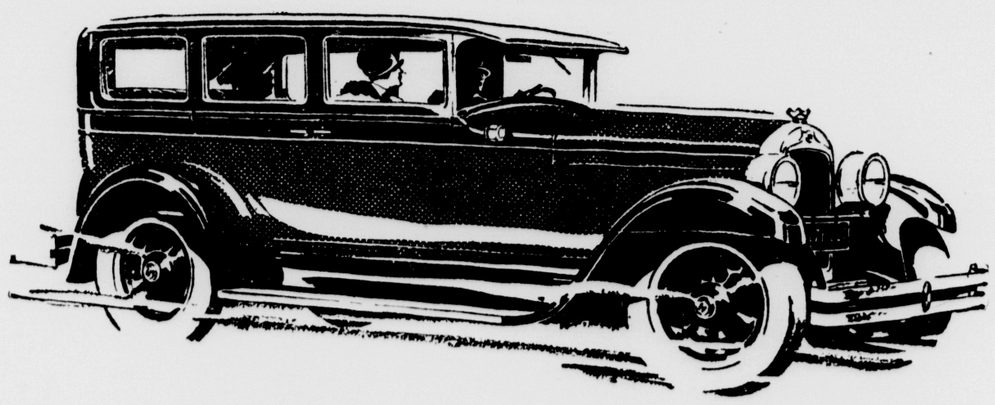

The sportsmen declare that the bill in addition to making it unlawful to use a reel also takes away from the farmer the right to use a trot line, makes sale of frogs in restaurants unlawful, requires children under 18 years of age to buy a license to use a reel, gives alleged special privileges to non-residents, makes it unlawful to take a mussel, and may raise the limit on bass to 30 per day because of ambiguous wording.

The sportsmen advocate stopping of commercial mussel fishing, lower limit on bass, curtailing of sale of live bait, and other conservation measures, but point out that to stop trot lining would be unfair to craftsmen in southern Ohio where these fish, that are bottom feeders, can be taken in no other way and that mussels are their chief bait.

It is doubtful if the legislature will give time to the bill when it returns, or let down the bars to introduction of a redrafted measure. Many sportsmen are asking Gov. Donahey to veto the bill if presented to him in its present form, league officials assert.

Nearly 380,000 automobiles were sent abroad from the United States and Canada last year.

Leading Public Preference In a Wave of Eight Buying

As predicted months ago, the Hupmobile Eight has not only precipitated a sweeping swing toward eights, but is supplanting both costlier eights and high-priced sixes.

By its constantly refined engineering, by new beauties of line and color and by unusually complete equipment—added to its unsurpassed smoothness and ease—Hupmobile Eight continues today to increase its leadership among the eights.

A half-hour's ride in the latest series Hupmobile Eight will reveal new qualities of brilliant performance—will convince you that higher expenditure can bring no greater return in luxury motoring.

Fourteen Distinguished Body Types—priced from $1945 to $5795 f. o. b. Detroit, plus revenue tax. Custom Bodies designed and built by Dietrich.

HATTIE

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE.

Back in her compartment, after luncheon, the talk went on. Hedwig slipped away unobserved. Disturbing as she found this searching analysis of his, she couldn't let him stop. She'd never heard the remark of the shrewd Frenchman to the effect that talking love is making love. She only knew that she couldn't let him stop. She knew no other man like him. Henry had seemed way out, she knew now, because she had so helplessly wanted him to seem that. But this man was real. In his mind, animating every thought and every word, she felt an honesty that was to her a vaguely heartbreaking sort of beauty . . she must find a way to give him honesty for honesty. Somehow. She couldn't go to him with a lie on her face—even if he shouldn't want her then . . . And all this he was saying couldn't be true. That about the force of her career. She couldn't face it. She'd show him. She'd cook for him. She'd live in two rooms. If only she could make him see it! If only she could master her thoughts and find a voice for this painful, wonderful stirring and swelling in her breast! She must find the way out of her inarticulate self. Everything kept on going so fast. . . And it was so queer. There were dozens of men in Beverly she knew by their first names; but she hadn't once yet spoken this aloud Julian. She wondered if she ever could speak it. . . . Queerly, too, the De Brissac influence had become remote. She could also, at moments, forget it. She thought again of those separate compartments in her life. De Brissac had come as a shock. "But," she reflected, "it wasn't me. It never was me." . . . Somehow she must speak out. She must make him feel the truth as she felt it. He must know, from her own lips, that he was her man.

She realized that he was talking on in that troubled way. Talking with that detachment of his fairly outside of himself, looking on. He seemed strangely a child. She wanted to take his head in her arms and mother him. Even if her experience should come to him as a shock. . . She must listen.

"What I come down to is the question whether what we think of as our personal happiness is ever of any particular importance. Every job takes us out of the personal. And living is just a job, I suppose. What we do counts, of course. And what we are, or become, is a result of what we do. But I doubt whether our feelings are important. You've got to go on, whatever you may think at the moment. I couldn't take you out of all that just to live for me. That would be monstrous. Don't you see, Harriet? And God He knows I'm no money-maker. I'm just one of these unaccountable artist persons, just a gypsy. I have to wait and brood, let the cream rise as it will . . . and then may be nobody'll want it. I can't drive it or force it. I'm no industry! God, if only I were!"

A shadow fell across the compartment. In the doorway stood the conductor, with his, "Tickets, please!—" and behind him the Pullman man.

Hattie had to rummage through her shopping bag for her tickets. While she hunted her thoughts raced. Somehow these men were an opportunity. It almost seemed that she could speak through them to Julian. . . . It was coming true. She could speak.

"Is there—" she was gazing up at them, her face was the sweetly blank mask of the famous picture star— "Is there any room in the Grand Canyon car?"

The train conductor turned to the Pullman man.

"Why, yes, Miss John," said that official, eager to please—oh, he knew her!—"There's a couple that want to change to a through car. But I'd have to put you and your maid in a section. There's no compartment."

"That'll be all right," said she, "if you have a berth for Mr. Dempster, too."

She could feel Julian's startled gaze, but didn't look. This was her competent every side. A year and a half of the picture business had developed that side. It was a relief to fall back into it for the moment. And it was amusing to know that Julian couldn't protest. He had to go away with the Pullman man after this things quite as matter-of-fact as she. She found she could even smile at him then, and secretly—playfully, even—catch his hand and give it a little squeeze. . . . This would be the first step on the way out of her problem. The effort with Henry had been ill judged, but this was right. She felt it, as the stony-faced Hedwig and the porter carried her things back through the train, exultantly. And the discovery that Julian was evading her brought a brooding faint smile. He had accepted the situation. She could see his suitcase resting on a seat a little way along the aisle. But she knew that he couldn't trust himself with her in the open car. Not now. She had read it in his eyes when he went away with the Pullman man and in the fingers that for a moment had clung to hers.

At least, in the evening, they had the observation platform to themselves. All day they had tacitly kept off this topic of the Canyon trip, even while rushing into it. For while outwardly all was as before—they were simply to be on the train, with Hedwig, one more day—their hearts, with that impulsive decision of hers, broke bounds. They were closer; no doubt about that. . . He said, finally, out here, tucked with her in a corner, on the little camp stools—

"This business does sort of crash in on us—this Canyon business. I was trying to think it out, Harriet I'm afraid we're going too fast."

He found her hand. And she hid a smile in her cape. De Brissac, she assured herself, was now no more than a dim phantom of memory. She was through with him. For the first time the thought came, a thought that was radiantly colored with this new glowing atmosphere, that perhaps she needn't tell after all. It might only make Julian unhappy. He wasn't the sort to be crudely jealous. He had broad understanding. Why not just close the doors of memory on an experience in which she had never found hapiness. It didn't matter to her now. Why should it matter to him. . . Circumstances had driven her into it. The situation had developed far beyond her small capacity. The family had driven her, too, straight to that man—Alice, and Arthur, even Gran'ma. For the money they'd done that. And they'd keep right on driving her to him. . . She shivered. Julian reached around and tucked her cape closely about her. . . . That was what she yearned for, his protecting hand. She was tired of the battle. . . . When he found, as he was surely going to find, how simply and honestly she would give her life to him, he'd stop worrying about her career. She had stopped. He'd see.

But she wasn't to get off so easily. Words came, suprisingly to herself; a nervous little uprush of speech; rather vehement; came out of one of those hidden under currents of mood that in natures so simple as hers are always stronger than any mere exercise of the brain.

"It's funny about all this success of mine." That troubled look was on her face. "Of course the money has been nice, having a pretty home and my car and everything. But I couldn't ever make it seem real."

"That's because it's still new."

"Perhaps." His fingers tightened about hers. "But I don't think it's just that. It's something else." She was staring out at the dimly receding track, unaware that he was studying her. She liked it when he gently put an arm about her shoulders. She settled wearly back against that arm and reached up her other hand to his. "It's the unpleasant atmosphere. Everything. All day. Everywhere I go. I don't want to work with De Brissac. He . . . takes advantage of me . . . ." Was she telling? She hadn't known she was going to say that. She rushed on, or rather this surprising deeper self rushed her on. "They all keep me at it. The family. They all live off me. Alice and Arthur and Emily. . . ."

"You don't mean that your brother-in-law. . . ."

She nodded nervously. "He doesn't do a thing but boss over my business. Putters around. Gets on my nerves. And there's Gran'ma. She's in a sanatarium now. It's ninety dollars a week. And now Alice is going to. . . ." What was the saying! She clamped her lips shut on that. She must get hold of herself. What was the matter with her, anyway? It was almost as bad as the night she fainted, so long ago.

He was still studying her, with a deepening tenderness in his eyes. This was all new to him, this nervous disturbance. It stirred his really great capacity for pity. It shook him. Could it be wonderfully beautifully true that the child needed him? She had, he saw clearly now, been passing through some deep experience. He could guess what. In a Bohemian world where men and women are thrown carelessly together in work that is in its nature emotional, such things have always happened, and, he well knew, will always happen. He knew in Paris and his New York. He was no moralist. He was, further, honest, and could say nom ore of the woman he loved than of himself. But his heart ached for her. And he tightened his grip about her little shoulders until her head sank as of right on his shoulder and her silky hair brushed his cheek. . . And so, without knowing it, without ever knowing it; aware herself only of his exquisite sympathy, she had told him everything.

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE.

Back in her compartment, after luncheon, the talk went on. Hedwig slipped away unobserved. Disturbing as she found this searching analysis of his, she couldn't let him stop. She'd never heard the remark of the shrewd Frenchman to the effect that talking love is making love. She only knew that she couldn't let him stop. She knew no other man like him. Henry had seemed way out, she knew now, because she had so helplessly wanted him to seem that. But this man was real. In his mind, animating every thought and every word, she felt an honesty that was to her a vaguely heartbreaking sort of beauty . . she must find a way to give him honesty for honesty. Somehow. She couldn't go to him with a lie on her face—even if he shouldn't want her then . . . And all this he was saying couldn't be true. That about the force of her career. She couldn't face it. She'd show him. She'd cook for him. She'd live in two rooms. If only she could make him see it! If only she could master her thoughts and find a voice for this painful, wonderful stirring and swelling in her breast! She must find the way out of her inarticulate self. Everything kept on going so fast. . . And it was so queer. There were dozens of men in Beverly she knew by their first names; but she hadn't once yet spoken this aloud. Julian. She wondered if she ever could speak it. . . . Queerly, too, the De Brissac influence had become remote. She could also, at moments, forget it. She thought again of those separate compartments in her life. De Brissac had come as a shock. "But," she reflected, "it wasn't me. It never was me." . . . Somehow she must speak out. She must make him feel the truth as she felt it. He must know, from her own lips, that he was her man.

She realized that he was talking on in that troubled way. Talking with that detachment of his fairly outside of himself, looking on. He seemed strangely a child. She wanted to take his head in her arms and mother him. Even if her experience should come to him as a shock. . . She must listen.

"What I come down to is the question whether what we think of as our personal happiness is ever of any particular importance. Every job takes us out of the personal. And living is just a job, I suppose. What we do counts, of course. And what we are, or become, is a result of what we do. But I doubt whether our feelings are important. You've got to go on, whatever you may think at the moment. I couldn't take you out of all that just to live for me. That would be monstrous. Don't you see, Harriet? And God He knows I'm no money-maker. I'm just one of these unaccountable artist persons, just a gypsy. I have to wait and brood, let the cream rise as it will . . . and then may be nobody'll want it. I can't drive it or force it. I'm no industry! God, if only I were!"

A shadow fell across the compartment. In the doorway stood the conductor, with his, "Tickets, please!—" and behind him the Pullman man.

Hattie had to rummage through her shopping bag for her tickets. While she hunted her thoughts raced. Somehow these men were an opportunity. It almost seemed that she could speak through them to Julian. . . It was coming true. She could speak.

"Is there—" she was gazing up at them, her face was the sweetly blank mask of the famous picture star—"is there any room in the Grand Canyon car?"

The train conductor turned to the Pullman man.

"Why, yes, Miss John," said that official, eager to please—oh, he knew her!—"There's a couple that want to change to a through car. But I'd have to put you and your maid in a section. There's no compartment."

"That'll be all right," said she, "if you have a berth for Mr. Dempster, too."

She could feel Julian's startled gaze, but didn't look. This was her competent every side. A year and a half of the picture business had developed that side. It was a relief to fall back into it for the moment. And it was amusing to know that Julian couldn't protest. He had to go away with the Pullman man after this things quite as matter-of-fact as she. She found she could even smile at him then, and secretly—playfully, even—catch his hand and give it a little squeeze. . . . This would be the first step on the way out of her problem. The effort with Henry had been ill judged, but this was right. She felt it, as the stony-faced Hedwig and the porter carried her things back through the train, exultantly. And the discovery that Julian was evading her brought a brooding faint smile. He had accepted the situation. She could see his suitcase resting on a seat a little way along the aisle. But she knew that he couldn't trust himself with her in the open car. Not now. She had read it in his eyes when he went away with the Pullman man and in the fingers that for a moment had clung to hers.

At least, in the evening, they had the observation platform to themselves. All day they had tacitly kept off this topic of the Canyon trip, even while rushing into it. For while outwardly all was as before—they were simply to be on the train, with Hedwig, one more day—their hearts, with that impulsive decision of hers, broke bounds. They were closer; no doubt about that. . . He said, finally, out here, tucked with her in a corner, on the little camp stools—

"This business does sort of crash in on us—this Canyon business. I was trying to think it out, Harriet. I'm afraid we're going too fast."

He found her hand. And she hid a smile in her cape. De Brissac, she assured herself, was now no more than a dim phantom of memory. She was through with him. For the first time the thought came, a thought that was radiantly colored with this new glowing atmosphere, that perhaps she needn't tell after all. It might only make Julian unhappy. He wasn't the sort to be crudely jealous. He had broad understanding. Why not just close the doors of memory on an experience in which she had never found hapiness. It didn't matter to her now. Why should it matter to him. . . Circumstances had driven her into it. The situation had developed far beyond her small capacity. The family had driven her, too, straight to that man—Alice, and Arthur, even Gran'ma. For the money they'd done that. And they'd keep right on driving her to him. . . She shivered. Julian reached around and tucked her cape closely about her. . . . That was what she yearned for, his protecting hand. She was tired of the battle. . . . When he found, as he was surely going to find, how simply and honestly she would give her life to him, he'd stop worrying about her career. She had stopped. He'd see.

But she wasn't to get off so easily. Words came, suprisingly to herself; a nervous little uprush of speech; rather vehement; came out of one of those hidden under currents of mood that in natures so simple as hers are always stronger than any mere exercise of the brain.

"It's funny about all this success of mine." That troubled look was on her face. "Of course the money has been nice, having a pretty home and my car and everything. But I couldn't ever make it seem real."

"That's because it's still new."

"Perhaps." His fingers tightened about hers. "But I don't think it's just that. It's something else." She was staring out at the dimly receding track, unaware that he was studying her. She liked it when he gently put an arm about her shoulders. She settled wearly back against that arm and reached up her other hand to his. "It's the unpleasant atmosphere. Everything. All day. Everywhere I go, I don't want to work with De Brissac. He . . . takes advantage of me . . . ." Was she telling? She hadn't known she was going to say that. She rushed on, or rather this surprising deeper self rushed her on. "They all keep me at it. The family. They all live off me. Alice and Arthur and Emily. . . ."

"You don't mean that your brother-in-law. . . ."

She nodded nervously. "He doesn't do a thing but fuss over my business. Putters around. Gets on my nerves. And there's Gran'ma. She's in a sanatarium now. It's ninety dollars a week. And now Alice is going to. . . ." What was the saying! She clamped her lips shut on that. She must get hold of herself. What was the matter with her, anyway? It was almost as bad as the night she fainted, so long ago.

He was still studying her, with a deepening tenderness in his eyes. This was all new to him, this nervous disturbance. It stirred his really great capacity for pity. It shook him. Could it be wonderfully beautifully true that the child neded him? She had, he saw clearly now, been passing through some deep experience. He could guess what. In a Bohemian world where men and women are thrown carelessly together in work that is in its nature emotional, such things have always happened, and, he well knew, will always happen. He knew in Paris and his New York. He was no moralist. He was, further, honest, and could say nom ore of the woman he loved than of himself. But his heart ached for her. And he tightened his grip about her little shoulders until her head sank as of right on his shoulder and her silky hair brushed his cheek. . . And so, without knowing it, without ever knowing it; aware herself only of his exquisite sympathy, she had told him everything.

"FLESH, DEVIL" AT CERAMIC

One of the world's most seductive screen charmers—being made violent love to by the champion lovemakers of two nations—this is the unique combination of the screen in "Flesh and the Devil," which opens a four-day run at the Ceramic theatre today.

Greta Garbo, blonde charmer of the screen and famous star from Europe, will know forever the difference between American and European lovemaking as a result of her role in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture—in fact, she had to act as a sort of judge of a battle for supremacy between the lovemakers of the American and the Swedish screen champions.

One of her screen lovers is John Gilbert, hero of "The Big Parade," "The Merry Widow," and famous for Hanson, the "Swedish Barrymore."

These three form a strange triangle in the new picture, a vivid drama of modern Europe, filmed by Clarence Brown from "The Undying Past," by the great European dramatist, Hermann Sudermann.

It is a gripping story based on sociological conditions in the old world, hanging on traditions of love and marriage, and with Miss Garbo in the role of a seductive modern Circe whose beauty and charm lures men to ruin. John Gilbert plays one of her lovers, and Hanson the other—his romantic roles—the other is Lars who marries her to precipitate one of the most powerful dramatic situations ever portrayed on the screen.

MARIE CHORGAS TAKES STAND

LOVER ACCUSES MRS. SNYDER OF MURDER PLOT

Today

An Important Crime.
There Is Other News.
Flood, Sunday Work, Stocks.
And the Big Los Angles.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

WHAT makes a murder important? New York makes the Snyder murder case violently important news. Even Cyrus H. K. Curtis' gentle, refined newspaper yesterday printed 15 columns of type and six pictures about that one crime, twice as much as it ever prints about anything "respectable."

THE average man kills a woman, or a woman kills a man, and 10 lines tell enough about it. Mrs. Snyder's husband is killed, sleeping; wire is fastened around his neck to make sure he will never wake; his skull is broken with a sash weight. And it takes 15 columns to tell that Mrs. Snyder says Mr. Gray did it, and she tried to stop him.

THE public asks: "Why did they do it? How could they do it?" The Rev. Dr. Straton writes about it and concludes, "You cannot cheat God." David Belasco sees Mrs. Snyder and reports "She's filled with fear."

The human race in its past and present primitive state is run by three mainsprings or impulses, which, in the order of their importance, are self-preservation, reproduction and ambition.

The first two, most powerful, make the Snyder case important news. The second human mainspring brought the two accused into the shadow of the electric chair. The first, most powerful, love of life, makes them now hate and denounce each other.

For an opportunity to see and hear the man and woman accuse each other, human beings in and around New York would gladly pay $10,000,000 in admission fees.

And that tells you what the human race is in this year of our Lord.

IS THERE no real news? Yes, the usual run, but it cannot compete with the Snyder case.

Col. Ewing, of New Orleans, reports that no danger threatens his city. Water rushing, millions of cubic feet per minute, through the crevasse opened purposely 10 miles below the city, finds its own way to the gulf, never returning to the river. New Orleans is not worried.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY miles up the river, four new crevasses, caused by high water, have flooded six parishes and made 140,000 more homeless. The Red Cross, having collected $5,000,000, asks for $5,000,000 more, to help out.

REAL help, in the way of prevention, should come from the government and engineers like those that built the Panama canal. Sweet charity is beautiful, when it is not too late.

Henry Judd Gray Swears Woman Told Him She Had Attempted to Gas Husband

Dapper Corset Salesman, Testifying for His Life, Puts Co-defendant's Alleged Words Into Her Own Lips.

"It Was Too Damn Bad Gas Tube Was Not Long Enough to Put in His Nose," Quotation Used by Witness.

By James L. Kilgallen.

QUEENS COUNTY COURT HOUSE, LONG ISLAND CITY, N. Y., May 4.—Turning words attributed to him by Mrs. Ruth Snyder into her own lips, Henry Judd Gray testifying for his life on the witness stand today at the Snyder-Gray murder trial asserted that Mrs. Snyder told him she had made an attempt to end her husband's life with gas but I didn't have any luck."

Fed Victim "Powders," Witness Says.

Gray testified that Mrs. Snyder tried to kill her husband by feeding him "powders," and that she used another method by feeding him drinks in the garage while the motor on his car was running, figuring he would be asphyxiated by monoxide fumes. She also asked how "knockout drops" worked, he said.

"It was too damn bad the gas tube wasn't long enough to put to his nose," Mrs. Snyder informed him at a love meeting, according to Gray.

This was the exact quotation Mrs. Snyder put in the mouth of Gray when she was testifying on the witness stand for her own life.

Gray, immaculately dressed, answered smoothly the questions of his lawyer, Samuel L. Miller.

Gray's dark, kinky hair was freshly barbered and his haberdashery was smart and faultless. His clear, sonorous voice came distinctly through the electrically operated loudspeakers.

Gray on Witness Stand.

Miller asked his questions in a friendly manner.

Q. Did you meet Mrs. Snyder in Hearl's restaurant in July, 1926, and did she show you an insurance policy? A. Yes, she did show me a policy.

Miller then produced three insurance policies.

"I show you this policy," said Miller, handing it to the witness. "Did she show you it that day when you met her in the restaurant?"

"She did."

Q. For what amount is this policy? A. Five thousand dollars.

Q. Tell us what was your conversation with her regarding that policy. A. She showed the policy to me and asked me to examine it. She wanted to know if it contained any provision for drowning. She said her husband was swimming a lot that summer and might drown. I was in a hurry and only glanced through it. I told her I didn't know whether it had a drowning provision or not and returned it to her.

Gray Took Sleeping Powders.

Q. Did she show you some sleping

LONDON SENDS NEW WAR DEBT NOTE TO U. S.

British Communication Received by State Department.

OFFICIALS MUM

Downing Street at Variance With Views of Mellon.

LONDON, May 4.—The British government has sent a new note to the United States, setting forth its position with regard to war debts.

The note was drafted by Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer and is in reply to recent observations by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on the debt question.

The note will be published here tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A communication from the British government, setting forth certain views on the international war debt question that are at variance with those recently expressed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, has been received at the state department, it was learned today.

The British note has been the subject of a conference between President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon and state department officials, but all refused to discuss it in any way.

Secretary Mellon, it was learned at the state department, is now preparing a reply to the British communication, and both will be released for publication in morning papers of tomorrow.

It is understood Winston Churchill, chancellor of the British exchequer, disputes Mr. Mellon at many points as set forth in Mellon's recent letter to President Hibben of Princeton.

MISSISSIPPI FLOOD RELIEF FUND PASSES MARK OF $2,812

Red Cross Reports $2,702 on Deposit in Bank.

DRIVE GOES ON

Residents of Northeast Louisiana Flee for Their Lives.

The Mississippi valley flood fund which is being raised by the East Liverpool chapter of the Red Cross for the relief of the danger zone refugees, totalled $2,812.76 today, or $362.76 more than the city's doubled quota of $2,450.

Actual cash received by W. E. Dunlap, cashier of the First National bank and treasurer of the Red Cross chapter, amounted to $2,702.76. This does not include $110 receipts and contributions at a benefit performance given at the American theatre.

Red Cross leaders expect the fund will reach the $3,000 mark before the end of the week when the campaign will be closed. National Red Cross officials have asked a nation-wide minimum of $10,000,000.

River Becomes Inland Sea.

TALULLAH, La., May 4. — The Mississippi today won northeastern Louisiana from its heroic defenders. Defeated in a two weeks' struggle with the raging flood, residents of the northeast quarter of the state gave up their fight with the devouring river today to flee for their lives.

From a point 30 miles north of the Arkansas border, the river has become an inland sea, at many points 50 miles wide. Water pours in on nine parishes from three directions. Rail traffic is prostrated and communication is failing rapidly. Thousands of exiles are scattering over the fertile countryside in a wild dash for high ground and approximately 5,000 square miles of the richest agricultural land in the state is laid waste.

The blazes were reported under control early today but a shift in the wind may mean that the work of the thousand volunters fighting the fire has been for naught.

CO-DEFENDANT TESTIFIES AS RINI COUNSEL PROTESTS MOVE

TWO-HOUR RECESS

Woman Will Tell Story of Alleged Stabbing.

Mrs. Marie Chorgas, 28, of Minneapolis, state's ace in the second degree murder trial of Salvatore Rini, 27, of East Liverpool, with whom she is jointly indicted in the death of Pasquale Anania, 25, of Wellsville, took the witness stand in common pleas court, Lisbon, at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Holds Key to Mystery.

Mrs. Chorgas was expected to tell the events leading up to the death of Anania, whose body, with a knife wound in the heart, was found in Rini's apartment in a Walnut street building on the night of March 22, last. The state claims Anania was stabbed during a fight, while the defense contends that he accidentally killed himself while carving meat with a butcher knife.

The Chorgas woman is believed to hold the key to the mystery, as other than she there were no eye-witnesses of the death scene.

She began testifying at the expiration of a two-hour recess of court, when Judge W. F. Lones, ruling on a question of law, held that the co-defendant could not be compelled to offer evidence, because of the possibility of incriminating herself, but if she so desired she had the opoprtunity to qualify as a state witness.

Defense Protests.

Attorneys W. A. O'Grady and Raymond Knepper, both of Wellsville, defending Rini, protested the state's attempt to use the witness, contending that she could not take the stand against a co-defendant unless the indictment against her were quashed.

Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes argued that Mrs. Chorgas had a right to testify if she wished.

Attorney S. W. Crawford, representing the woman, took no part in the argument.

Judge Lones dismissed the jurors when the argument began, and at 10:45 o'clock adjourned court until 12:45 while he took the question of law under advisement.

Law is Quoted.

Defense attorneys, in support of their argument, quoted Section 13670 of the General Code which reads:

"When two or more persons are jointly indicted before any of the accused has gone into his defense the court may direct one of such accused to be discharged that he may be a witness for the state. An accused person when there is not sufficient evidence to put him upon his defense may be discharged by the court, or, if not so discharged shall be entitled to the immediate verdict of the jury, for the purpose of giving evidence for others accused with him. Such order of discharge in either case shall be a bar to another prosecution for the same offense."

During the early part of the forenoon Felix Anania, an uncle of Pasquale Anania; Patrolman William Lister and Chief of Police Hugh J. McDermott, all of East Liverpool, were cross-examined by defense attorneys. They had testified under direct examination yesterday afternoon.

ONE CARL KELLY IS FINED $50

Carl Kelly, Walnut stret, was fined $50 and costs by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today after he pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery, preferred by his wife, Mrs. Nora Kelly, waitress.

Mrs. Kelly testified that Kelly had struck her several times after driving her from their home last evening. The husband was unable to pay his fine and was committed to jail.

Special meeting of Painters Union No. 165 May 5th, 7:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present. Business of importance.

BY ORDER OF PRESIDENT.

Nature's Loveliest Gift is Rose

No decorative plant has been more closely identified with the progress of western civilization than the rose. It is an insignia alike of joy, of sorrow, of love, and of war. It is the flower beloved by all.

No garden is complete without its roses. And no other plant can be used in such a variety of ways—for the lawn and border, for the arbor and trellis, for the hedge, for cutting, and for other ornamental purposes.

Roses are not difficult to grow and the time and effort required will be rewarded by an abundance of wonderful blooms that will be a delight all summer long.

This Bureau has for distribution a booklet entitled "Roses for the Home." Whether a rose expert, or a beginner, you need this book. Send for your copy today.

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

WHY FLOOD'S "WORST IN HISTORY" TOLD BY U. S. FORESTRY CHIEF

WASHINGTON, May 4.—The worst flood in American history?

WILLIAM B. GREELEY

In fact, he considers that a darn mild way of expressing it.

Why, this has been the worst flood the Mississippi valley ever knew—not only in historic times, but in pre-historic times, likewise.

They didn't think of having such floods back when Hernando de Soto first sighted the Father of Waters.

They didn't have 'em when Columbus was making the egg stand on end. The original Indians and buffalo never heard of such a thing.

This has been the worst flood the Mississippi valley has had since there's been a Mississippi valley.

ALL this is according to the forest service of the United States department of agriculture.

How does the forest service know so much about what things were like long before the country was discovered—long before there were any measurements or army engineers or weather bureau or anything?

It knows, rejoins Chief Greeley, because it stands to reason that the Mississippi must have behaved itself when its headwaters and the headwaters of all its tributaries were in thickly-wooded country.

THE rain fell, pitter-patter, on the leaves and dripped off gradually.

The snow melted and started little rivulets, but they had to twist and turn, every which-way, to get around big tree trunks, and they didn't get down hill very fast, there were so many detours to be taken into account.

The tree roots absorbed lots of moisture, too.

Besides, the ground was covered with moss and decaying vegetation, which sopped up water like sixty. To be sure, a good deal of it oozed out again, but it was all summer doing it.

They didn't have bad floods in those days. They couldn't.

THEN along came a huge army of vandalse and amputated those forests, slick and clean.

They chopped down the trees or set fire to 'em. They grubbed up even the stumps or blew 'em to smithereens with dynamite. And they never planted a blamed stick of timber in place of 'em.

Today there's a big rainstorm, or the snow melts and lets loose billions of gallons of water.

It goes rampaging down those bare hillsides like a millrace.

It hits the bottom ker-splash!—same as dashing it out of a bucket.

NATURALLY the brooks swell up and then the creeks and then the rivers and the Mississippi overflows and the very devil's to pay, and everybody says:

"Gol-ding the Mississippi! How in the nation are we going to control this blinkety-blank stream, anyway?"

Ya ain't going to control it. That's Chief Forester Greeley's answer—not till you plant more forests up in the country where the water comes from.

LEVEES and dikes! Outlets and reservoirs!

All these schemes leave Chief Greeley cold. Trees! They're his program.

How long will it take? Oh, a generation or two. But we may as well get busy, he opines, because otherwise things are going to get worse right along, instead of better.

TEETH IN RELATION TO HEALTH

Editor's note—The following is another of the series of articles on various phases of dentistry prepared by a representative of the East Liverpool-Wellsville Dental society).

The biggest problem in the world today is the health problem, and the biggest thing in the health problem is the diet and habits in the early periods of a child's life. This statement may seem very strange coming from the dental profession, rather than from the medical profession, but Dr. Charles Mayo, of the famous Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., made the assertion a few years ago, "That the next great advance in medicine must come from the dental profession, and wondered if they would take care of it."

The deficiencies which manifest themselves in the dental apparatus of the child are generally, in part at least, results of deficiencies in the diet of the Mother before the child is born and wrong feeding of the infant. The diet which will protect the teeth of the mother against the heavy demands of the pre-natal period is the very diet to supply material for the bones and teeth of the prospective child. It is the belief of the dental research workers that in children with small narrow arches in which the teeth are crowded and crocked that there has been a lack of development of the bones of the face, and this condition is due to a deficiency in the nutrition, and so with the proper diet it is possible, as well as the perfectly natural thing to do, to build up and maintain a nutritional balance that will build up and maintain a perfectly healthy body, with well-developed bones, muscles, teeth and all the other organs of the human body.

In the narrow, under-developed mouths there is a restricted condition of the air passage and sinuses, which later in life creates a condition very susceptible to catarrh, throat and ear troubles, mouth breathing, etc. Therefore, please bear in mind that tooth trouble does always originate in the mouth. Our medical brothers truthfully tell us that a clean healthy body will not get sick. Healthy teeth resist decay; sick teeth invite decay.

In that rapidly growing period of children—fourteen to eighteen—when so much lime salts, etc. are required for the bones and muscles, the teeth are very susceptible to decay, many mouths showing white spots on the teeth which break down and form cavities. A correct diet earlier in life would have built up a resistance to this condition. If an increase of resistance is built up in early life of the child, and nature will build up this condition if given the proper material with which to build it, then there will be much greater increased resistance to systemic diseases. When the body vitality is lost there is an acid condition to the system which is favorable to decay of the teeth. If the nutritional balance of the individual is maintained at the proper level, the teeth will exhibit a very high degree of resistance to decay, but when there is a serious unbalanced nutrition, the resisting power of the teeth is greatly reduced, and if this unbalanced condition is continued long enough, and in many cases it requires only a comparatively short time, the teeth will be practically destroyed from conditions within the system but wholly apart from the teeth themselves.

A balanced diet will contain liberal quantities of unpasteurized whole milk, leafy vegetables, fruits, especially orange juice including the pulp which is excellent for the bowels, etc. Unpasteurized milk should be used because the Pasteurizing process destroys the vitamines contained in it which is also true in the cooking of vegetables and fruits. Fruits and vegetables that are ripened in the sun, whole wheat bread, bran, etc. are the foods that will build up a strong resistance to mouth troubles. We know that great susceptibility to decay of the teeth, and the unhealthy condition of the soft tissues of the mouth, are the oral, or mouth expression of a lowered physical condition, so by building up a strong physical vitality we will have a mouth and teeth that will resist trouble. The so-called "soft teeth" that all dentists hear so much about are only the results of denying nature the proper material with which to build good teeth.

Pains That Never Came

Here's glorious news for long-suffering womankind! To every woman who periodically has suffered pain, Menstruation need no longer be painful. And it is Science that is speaking!

Specialists have developed a tiny tablet called midol. It's a simple thing, utterly harmless to a girl of fourteen, but it brings relief in five to seven minutes. And is effective twelve hours or longer!

Midol is NOT a narcotic. It has no effect whatever on heart or nervous system. It acts directly on those organs affected by menstruation. They function normally, as they should, but the pain is banished. Complete relief—yes, perfect comfort—follows midol.

Your druggist has midol for 50 cents, in a slim aluminum box to tuck in your purse.

Sound Health Advice Is Offered by Cleveland Woman.

Don't go on dieting and wondering what you ought to eat to make you well. Just pitch in and eat everything your appetite craves. Nature knows what is best for you and if you didn't require certain foods you would have no desire for them.

Redwood.

Mrs. Elsie McKee, 3140 W. Fiftieth St., Cleveland, Ohio says: "For ten years I suffered with stomach and kidney trouble and all the dieting I ever did never helped me one bit.

"I was so run down that I felt tired all the time and would wake up mornings with a sick headache. My back was so sore that I could hardly bend over. I had a pain in my right side and my nerves were all unstrung.

"My brother-in-law told me how Redwood's Tonic had helped him and so I got a bottle. It was just what I needed. My stomach and kidneys are in better condition that they have been for ten years. My nerves are quiet and I sleep soundly, consequently I don't feel tired during the day.

"I have a better appetite and eat just what I want without bad after effects. My pains are all gone and my bowels are regular. I am going to keep right on taking Redwood's Tonic for several months."

Redwood's Tepee Herb Tonic is recommended and sold in East Liverpool by Carnahan's Drug Store and by well stocked druggists everywhere.

CONVICT LABOR APPEAL DENIED

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A contract for the hire of convict labor which was obtained with cost cannot be included in the invested capital of a corporation, it was held today by the board of tax appeals in the appeal of the Kleeson company of Moundsville, W. Va., against the commissioner of internal revenue.

The company, organized by John A. Bloyd and Marcus Bachenheimer, obtained without cost a contract for prison labor, which it held to be worth $150,000. It deducted from its income each year the fifth of the estimated value of its five-year contract, but the commissioner of internal revenue disallowed the deduction and assessed the company with additional taxes amounting to more than $40,000 in three years. The board of appeals sustained the commissioner.

EAST LIVERPOOL—AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, 1927.

Proposed Vote On Mayor's Salary Slash

Judging from the number of signatures already placed on petitions now in circulation, a showdown on the proposal to reduce the mayor's annual salary from $1,800 to $600 a year is certain at the November 8 election, unless city council, in the interim, reconsiders its action of a few weeks ago.

Under the provisions of what is familiarly known as the I. and R. law, petitioners will submit an initiative ordinance, which, if approved, shall become effective on January 1, 1928, calling for the pay cut. The economy measure is prompted by the fact that the city executive, through the establishment of the municipal court, has been relieved of much of the work that formerly fell to his lot.

By a one-vote margin, councilmen recently defeated the suggested legislation. Solons Hughes, Hayes and Kommel supported the plan, while their colleagues, Farrall, Goodballet, Kelly and Poole voted against it.

The consensus of opinion, apparently, seems to be that the municipal legislators should reconsider their action, thus saving the taxpayers the expense of calling a vote. If councilmen are so disposed, the step should be taken at tomorrow night's session. Otherwise, their judgment, as well as the economy ordinance, will be on trial at the fall election.

American Policy in China

The United States government, while co-operating militarily with the other powers in their protective work in China, is apparently pursuing a course of its own diplomatically. This is a polcy in which most Americans take genuine satisfaction.

Whatever reasons there may be for co-operating with other powers in international matters elsewhere, and there are many, the argument for unity has little application to China. European interests there are not ours. America has no concessions there, no seaports, no special holdings or rights or privileges of any kind. It has only the history and tradition of square dealing with China, and insistence that in trade matter all nations shall be treated alike.

America has been a consistent friend of China for half a century, while other powers have been grabbing Chinese territory and acquiring dubious privileges of many kinds which they now feel called on to defend. It is no part of American duty to help the other powers hold those privileges. America is not obligated to pull any of their chestnuts out of the fire, or join them in coercing China to provide more chestnuts.

America asks only for fair treatment of Americans, and protection for American life and property, and will stand a better chance of getting these benefits by playing a lone hand than by helping the game of the imperialistic powers.

Great Britain, France and Italy seem to feel very bad about it. They might feel better if they would follow the American example. And they may do that very thing, if America stands pat on her policy of justice to China and non-interference in Chinese affairs.

Beauty Classes

The classes, needless to say, are for girls. They have a possible rating of 100 per cent. Everything that contributes to the general improvement of the pupil's appearance—health, dress, cleanliness, adornment, etc.—is counted in. There is no effort at "reform," except hygienic and artistic reform. There is no prohibition of rouge or lipstick, but the girl who uses either finds her rating pulled down 5 or 10 points, and a run in her silk stocking may reduce it another 10 points.

The girls are really interested in those classes. And why not? Beauty is heaven's first law, and any plan that will add more beauty to the world by improving girls' appearance in natural and sensible ways adds so much to the joy of life for everybody. It is better, too, to have right ideas of beauty taught in school than wrong ideas learned elsewhere.

No More Guns By Mail

May 10 is a notable day for one reason. On that day the law prohibiting the promiscuous use of the mails for the shipping of firearms will become effective. Congress enacted the law and Postmaster General New has sent a list of the regulations to all postmasters and responsible postal officials. From May 10 forward it should be difficult for gun-buyers to get their weapons from mail order houses and to make the United States government a party to their purchases by carrying the guns in the mail.

A fine of $1,000 and a two-year term in a federal penitentiary are the penalties for so using the mails.

Gun-men will still get hold of guns, but not quite so easily as before. Barring firearms from the mails is only one small move in their regulation, but it is one decidedly in the right direction.

It may be all right for girls to try to look like boys as long as boys don't try to look like girls.

THE PROPER PLACE FOR SYMPATHY.

First appearances are frequently deceitful, that is why it doesn't always pay to bestow one's sympathies too quickly, as witness the moral of this tale:

A gentleman of a kindly turn of mind, on his way to dinner, met a small boy of the neighborhood who showed unmistakable signs of having just figured in a hand battle. It distressed the kind gentleman to think that little boys of his acquaintance should fight with one another.

He halted the battered urchin.

"Tommy," he said reprovingly, "I am very sorry to see that you have a black eye."

"Huh!" answered Tommy, "you'd better go on home and be twice as sorry for your own boy—he's got two of 'em!"

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 4.—Those ragged little shavers found nightly in West 47th and 48th street, near Broadway, roam in packs—with a leader. They hang about cafe and theatre doors, hawking soiled last editions and opening taxi doors for small change.

With their trifling spoils they pitch pennies at cracks or roll dice and stampede off in full cry at the sight of a blue uniform. Once in awhile they vary their routine by sidewalk clogging for tossed coins. They are rather pathetic little bundles of rags.

Most of them show the effect of malnutrition. Their drooping trousers are held to tattered shirts by wires or nails and their hats are several sizes too big. They are orphans of Broadway's destroying storm—eluding truant and correction house officers for months.

The leaders rule by might of tiny fists. There is an unfailing code of fairness among themselves, but the world is their oyster for trivial pillage. They sleep where ever night finds them and rarely appear in the side street bright lights until dusk.

The manner is tough. "Hully gee" talk out of the side of the mouth is the conversationalism medium. And they greet stern reality with a bravado. Gangs fight rival gangs and noses are bloodied and faces scratched without a whimper.

Nearly all the famous gangsters have come from similar environment. They become as naturally predatory as scavenging birds and usually wind up in prison before they are 21. Some are without parents, some have been cast off and others have cut away to drift. All are homeless.

I have seen them huddled together and nodding in the sooty seethe of garage doorways as late as 4 a. m. They may try to sell you a last week copy of a newspaper or hit off a new Charleston step for a bit of change, but I have yet to see one who stoops to outright begging. There is something magnificent in their independence.

Julius Tannen, the actor, several months ago, salvaged one of the West 47th street tatterdemalions out of the gutter to give him a better chance. He was a tow-headed youngster, generously freckled and with two missing front teeth. He called himself "Red" McKenna and was so adept at jigging that Tannen introduced him at various benefits and Sunday night concerts where he ended in a shower of change. Julius tried to adopt him, but a legal religious barrier intervened and he was sent to a Children's Society. When Tannen took the boy to his home at Forest Hills, he looked out over the lawn and as one making a great discovery, pointed and cried: "Gee, a tree. I seen 'em on the back drops."

There is another who says his name is just "Mickey." About a year ago he fell desperately in love with a beautiful leading lady and haunted the stage door, hiding in shadows for just a glimpse of her. One night she did not appear. The doorman told him she wasill in a West-End hospital. Next morning early, he appeared in the hospital reception room with his face scrubbed white and his neck revealing a high water mark. He carried a bunch of flowers for her. He was asked by an attendant, where he got them. "I pinched 'em," he replied, 'at a dago funeral."

Jimmy Geards is a street gamin who led a raid on a garage and was the only one caught. A lawyer told him to squeal on his pals and thereby win a light sentence. Instead he told the judge: "Put it all on me. The other kids has mudders.? I ain't so I'll take the rap,'. He not only got a suspended sentence, but the judge started a collection that netted $25 and turned it over to him.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Vegetable Acreage Reduced.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 4.—The acreage devoted to the growing of vegetables that are to be canned has been materially reduced for the season of 1927. In an isolated instance the reduction is only 2 per cent, but it runs from that up to 30 per cent and the average is around 25 per cent. Such are the unofficial figures from the canning industry. They tell a tale of more hard luck for the American farmer.

The situation is not so bad, however, as it has been represented in some of the reports that have been circulated. For example, widespread publicity has been given a story to the effect that the canners have stocks of peas on hand sufficient to supply all ordinary demands of the trade for at least two years.

The facts are that on April 1 last 96 canning firms reported to the Department of Agriculture surplus stocks of peas aggregating 2,215,148 cases, while 14 firms reported no stocks on hand. The firms reporting represented about one-third of the total acreage planted to peas for canning purposes last year, and from this it may be estimated that the total surplus stock can not be expected to exceed 6,650,000 cases. The pack in 1926 was 17,709,000 cases and two years ago it was well over the 19,000,000 mark, so it is apparent that a surplus stock which at the maximum is barely a third of the annual pack is not sufficient to meet market demands for a period of two years.

The fact that the contract acreage for all vegetables has been curtailed for the present season is evidence, however, that there has been over-production in the canning industry. Firms representing 40 per cent of the average planted last year to sweet corn for canning purposes reported on April 1 surplus stocks aggregating more than 4,000,000 cases. This would indicate a possible surplus of 10,000,000 cases, whereas the total pack for 1926 was 19,069,000 cases and for 1925, 24,320,000 cases. Similarly, tomato canners representing 15 per cent of the 1926 acreage reported stocks on hand of 1,405,309 cases, which would indicate a total surplus of about 9,000,000 cases, as compared with a pack of 9,455,000 cases for last year, which was a decided drop from the 1925 pack of 19,770,000 cases.

The Farmer's Best Bet.

Growing vegetables for the canners is perhaps the farmer's bet best. The canners enter into a contract with him to plant or sow a certain number of acres, they supply him with seed, and they agree to take his crop at a stipulated price. He does not have to worry about finding a market for his product nor as to the price he will receive. His sole concern is as to the weather and other growing conditions, and if worse comes to worst, his loss is only his labor or part of it.

Growing wheat, corn, and other farm or garden products is a different proposition. The farmer must finance his own planting, he must use his own judgment as to acreage, he must gamble on the weather, and he never knows the price his crops will bring until he goes to market. He may find that he has raised too much or too little of a certain crop, too much rain or a drought may curtail his production, and a dozen and one factors may depress prices until he finds that he does not realize enough on his crops to pay for his seed and planting.

If the farmer could grow all his products on the contract acreage basis, knowing in advance the prices he will receive for them, agriculture would cease to be such a highly speculative industry and there probably would be no need and no demand for farm relief legislation suuch as was embodied in the Haugen-McNary Bill which President Coolidge vetoed.

Growing vegetables for canning has increased rapidly in recent years. In 1908 the pea pack was only 5,577,060 cases, and for the three succeeding years it was less than that, the low mark being 4,347,000 cases in 1910. But in 1912 it had jumped to well over the 7,000,000 mark and by 1918 it had exceeded 11,000,000.

Wisconsin is the banner state when it comes to producing peas for the canners. For years the pack there has approximated or exceeded that for all the other states combined. It ran above 10,000,000 cases both in 1924 and 1925, and last year it was 9,287,000 cases out of a total pack for the country of 17,109,000 cases. New York ranks second, with a pack in 1926 of 2,264,000 cases, and for the last five years Utah has held third place, with a pack averaging close to 1,000,000 cases.

Where Corn Comes From.

Iowa led in the production of canned corn in 1908, but Illinois took the lead in 1909 and since that time the rivalry between the two states has been keen, with Maryland looming up as a contender all these years. In 1925 when the corn pack ran well above 24,000,000 cases, Iowa and Illinois supplied a third of it with more than 4,000,000 cases each, while Maryland was not far behind with 3,678,000. Last year Iowa and Illinois again had their third of the national production, but each had dropped off a million cases, while Maryland was running a million and a half behind her 1925 record. Minnesota has shown a great increase in canned corn, her pack last years being almost six times what it was in 1918, and Indiana is another state that is doing well in corn, with a pack for the last two years well in excess of 2,000,000 cases, as compared with a fourth of that in 1918.

For 20 years the production of canned tomatoes has ranged from ten to fifteen million cases annually save for two years—1921 when it dropped to approximately four million, and 1925 when it totaled almost twenty million. In all these years Maryland has topped the table of production by states except in 1919 and last year. As far back as 1908 Maryland turned out almost 5,000,000 cans of tomatoes and four years later she attained the mark of 6,350,000, which she has exceeded only once, in 1918, with 6,649,475.

California got into the canned tomato business, statistically speaking, in 1915 with a pack of 1,281,000 cases, and she has ranked second or third every year since except in the years she took first place from Maryland.

The aggregate pack of all vegetables in the United States runs from 75 to 100 million cases each year, with a value ranging from $185,000,000 to $250,000,000. The big items are the staples — corn, peas, tomatoes, and beans—with beans, in the various forms in which they are packed, leading with a pack of around 25,000,000 cases valued at upward of $55,000,000. Asparagus ranks after the staples, but with a pack of a million and a half cases that is worth some $11,000,000.

The fruit pack, with peaches leading, runs from 20 to 25 million cases with a value of from $80,000,000 to $100,000,000. Of fish and oysters, with salmon out in front, 12 to 15 million cases are packed and they bring from $73,000,000 to $80,000,000.

Other canned products, such as soups, milk, meat, pickles, sauces, preserves, jellies, and jams, and who would you, run to many, many cans, because they are small, but their aggregate value adds up to the respectable sum of $375,000,000 or $400,000,000 annually.

Whitman's Shop Wholly Modern and Up To Minute in Equipment and Service

Signallizes Efforts to Keep Abreast of Today's Demands for Better Personal Appearance; Utmost in Sanitation Achieved by Owner, One of City's Most Experienced Barbers.

Modernity is new—now; last week's accomplishments, while still remembered, perhaps, may be old today. The horse car gave way to the swift electric, the bustle to nothing at all, long skirts, atrocious hair, woolen hose and shiny nose to the hoyden, carefree flapper of today and now, it is whispered, the latter ns to become somewhat passe in favor of an exotic, slumberous, semi-Oriental type of sleeked black hair and sepia tinted complexion-new.

And so personal appearance changes gradually but inexorably as new foibles or mannerisms present themselves, and the materialistic servants of beauty (human nature demands beauty) must keep abreast, ever alert to a new demand, a new need.

Beauty can not be manufactured, nor bestowed as if by the flourish of a magic wand, but the modern barber, mindful of the requirements of a new generation and day, can aid beauty.

And to this end, considering the commercial aspect of the theme, Ralph Whitman, one of the city's oldest and best known barbers, has established and is operating probably one of the most modern and most thoroughly equipped combination barber shops and beauty parlors in this section of the state.

If design, materials of construction, appointments and equipment are to be considered in making comparisons, Whitman's needs bow to none, anywhere, and the service, certainly, is on a plane with the most thoroughly metropolitan establishment of its kind.

Feminine necessities in the way of permanents, marcels, manicures, facials, and the periodic hair trim that has become as necessary a part of Milady's routine as it has always been the gentleman's have made of themselves almost a business within a business at Whitman's, and not without reason.

At the heighth of her power, Cleopatra ranked as the reigning beauty of her day. The Enchantress of the Nile was one among many. Were she to return in the fullness of her beauty, today she could only be one of many. Aiding and developing beauty to the point where it may be expected to appear at its best has become an art and in the transition from the days ago, the means have been placed figuratively at the finger tips of every woman who seeks to develop personal appearance to the utmost.

Consider the convenience at Whitman's and the reason is not a mystery.

Private booths have been constructed for this particular line of work, each thoroughly equipped and constructed and of the best design and materials at the command of the Koken Barber Supply Co., of St. Louis.

In each is installed a modern chair, especially designed for this work—regular beauty parlor chairs, comfortable to the last word—a two-in-one "sliding unit" consisting of wash bowl and mirror and other accessory equipment. Thus, when the services of the washbowl are no longer required, a long mirror is shoved silently in front of it and directly facing the occupant of the chair. The bowl is eliminated from sight and the little compartment becomes a miniature boudoir.

In permanent waving, an important feature in the Whitman service, the Eugene system alone is used. This, according to Mrs. Whitman, who is in charge, is probably the most thorough system in vogue today. The waving, by use of a two-way heater, is accomplished through the agency of steam, and the hair is not "baked." The Sunair drying system is used for hair and also in facials. Probably a noteworthy feature is the fact that any of this service is available without the patron moving from her chair.

But Whitman's is a "man's barber shop," too. And this section of his shop, directly off the street entrance, is just as painstakingly equipped as the beauty parlors.

Beautiful white Italian marble casing surrounds the large mirrors in front of five chairs. Each chair, too, has among its own accessory equipment, an individual washbowl, as another means of promoting sanitation.

The room, itself, large and airy, well laid off, has no superior in the matter of ventilation, an important consideration.

In fact, everything in the shops bespeaks modernity, as well as success for the efforts of its owner to conduct a business wherein courtesy, refinement and the innate ability of the members of its active personnel combine to provide its clientele with the best to be obtained in that business.

Girlish Charm

The exquisite daintiness you admire in so many women depends as much on their hair as their peach-blow complexion and stylish clothes. You can't look good with a pretty dress and dull, stringy hair any more than you would be neatly dressed if you had on a pair of shoes with runover heels.

You don't have to be denied the admiration you love, because your hair isn't lovely. It is so easy to keep it soft, bright and silky. But don't expect shampooing to do it. Soap and water only washes out the dirt, but can not remove dandruff and that oily film on each strand which keeps hair dull and lifeless. Danderine does it, without drying out the hair too.

The next time you fix your hair, wet your brush with Danderine and draw it through with long, even strokes until each strand is alive and glowing. It takes just a few minutes each day. There's no inconvenience of waiting. You can go right out, and the improvement you will see in the loveliness of your hair will thrill you so you will want to always have Danderine in your room along with your other beauty necessities, so you can make it a dainty habit to use it. It will help to keep in your waves.

Danderine is so inexpensive too. The 35c bottle contains enough to prove to you how wonderful it is. You can get it from your nearest store.

Abandoned Coal Mines Being Used as Caches For Illicit Stills

ZANESVILLE, O.—Abandoned Ohio coal mines are now being used as caches for illicit stills, it became known here this week when state prohibition officers made a flying visit to New Straitsville, Perry county, and discovered six large stills in abandoned mine pits half a mile below the earth's surface. Two stills were in operation, though no attendants were discovered.

State officers declare they are confident the raid and confiscation will cut off the chief source of supply, of a contraband moonshine liquor which has been sold in all sections of the country as "Straitsville Special." This liquor it is reported was made from rye and was three times distilled.

WELLSVILLE SOLONS ADOPT STORM SEWER MEASURE

Council Factions Clash Across Table Over Legislation.

Ordinances providing for the construction of a storm sewer in Seventeenth street and the resurfacing of Lisbon road to the city limits were passed by Wellsville council on first readings last night.

The two ordinances, apparently, are tied up together. As counsel factions clashed across the table, members of the group advocating the enactment of the drainage relief measure standing ready to turn thumbs down on the Lisbon street proposal unless backers of the latter project come to their aid in the sewer voting.

Attempts to legislate the two ordinances through have assumed somewhat the aspect of an "East End" and "West End" controversy.

Resolution to place the sewer project on first reading, providing for the construction of a sewer 1,050 feet long, in Seventeenth street to Main and under the railroad tracks to the Ohio river, at a cost estimated at $18,000, was approved with Solon Connor casting the only dissenting vote.

Connor asserted that he felt as he did at first—that the people had turned the sewer proposal down at the polls.

Peters suggested that the city interview the county auditor to determine whether or not an extra quarter mill levy was available and then council could decide the course of action on the sewer.

In response to a query by Swearingen, Solicitor Luccock said that the prospect of getting the quarter mill was a little "shady," but there was some hope, at that.

"Let's throw our cards on the table, face up," demanded Councilman Nicholson, "and put the Lisbon street resurfacing on the same basis as the Seventeenth street sewer." Nicholson objected to economy in one respect and not in another.

At the voting the sewer proposal passed on first reading, with Connor voting against it.

Ordinance for the improvement of Lisbon street then was introduced and on a motion was placed before solons as an emergency measure under suspended rules.

And with the emergency clause in it it went down to defeat by a vote of four to three, Connor, Peters and McLean voting in the affirmative and Reil, Weldman, Swearingen and Nicholson in the negative.

On a motion by Reil, then, the ordinance was re-introduced on first reading and passed with Nicholson voting against it.

As a result, both the sewer and the Lisbon street ordinances were approved on first readings, only, and await action by the solons at subsequent meetings.

MAYOR SETS ASIDE PERIOD FOR CLEAN-UP

Designates May 5 to 20 as Campaign Weeks.

Board of Health Pledges Its Co-operation.

Asking citizens of the city to co-operate with municipal authorities to make Wellsville a better place in which to live by cleaning up the winter's accumulation of cans and other debris, dressing up their properties and painting up, where painting is needed, Mayor W. L. Fogo today issued the following proclamation setting aside that section of the month from May 5 to May 20 as a clean up period:

"The city administration, acting with the chamber of commerce, board of education, all civic, industrial clubs and other organizations, has designated May 5 to 20, 1927, as a clean-up and paint-up period for Wellsville, Ohio.

"All citizens should join in this movement by giving their personal aid in cleaning up their property so as to avoid fire risks and to abolish fly and mosquito breeding places by planting flower and vegetable gardens, grass seeds, shrubs and trees, all of which tends to increase healthfulness of the citizens of Wellsville as well as increase the beauty of the city's surroundings.

In a communication read to solons last night, the board of health announced its willingness to co-operate in the clean-up period. The board announced it had no funds but was willing to assist in any other way possible

ASKS COUNCIL TO ACT AGAINST FORCED SALE

Mayor Appeals to Solons for Immediate Action.

Finance Committee to Consider Problem Monday.

Exhibiting a legal advertisement in a newspaper in which announcement is made of the proposed sheriff's sale of Wells avenue property owned by the city, Mayor W. L. Fogo last night called upon solons to take whatever action may be necessary to prevent the sale.

The sale is intended to obtain funds to meet judgments rendered in favor of Attorney Charles Boyd against the city amounting to approximately $500 for remuneration in two cases.

"I never knew of this to occur at any other time in the history of the city," asserted the mayor, pointing out that while it was not the fault of council, the situation having been handed down from previous administrations, the solons should act against it.

Solicitor Luccock announced he would take the matter up with members of the finance committee at a meeting Monday night.

Service Director Ashley, referring to petitions from "over the crossing" residents complaining of the length of time in which railroad trains blocked the Eighteenth street crossing, notified council that the railroad company had posted bulletins at various place along the division warning train crews against the practice. He asserted that if it was not stopped, probably the most effective step would be the arrest of an engineer or conductor.

Mayor Fogo instructed council to prepare resolutions hereafter for the installation of new lights, inasmuch as such action means the expenditure of money and, consequently, must go through proper legal steps.

Conditions of sewers in Eighteenth street and Clark avenue and in Third and Riverside were referred to the service director as well as improvement work at the county bridge.

A motion also passed in which the solons pledged co-operation with the city's baseball club by keeping the playing grounds near Eighteenth street clean and providing, whatever other protection may be necessary.

Solicitor Luccock announced that franchise negotiations with the telephone company were nearing completion.

A claim against the city, amounting to $30, by Walter Brown, a resident of Newton Falls, who asserted that a tire on his automobile was damaged to that extent by a grating in Tenth and Wood streets, was referred to the solicitor.

BENEFIT MOVIE, CANVASS, FOR MERCY FUND

City Strives to Reach Double Quota Goal.

NEED $445 MORE

Boy Scout Solicitation Planned Saturday Morning.

Although voluntary subscriptions to the Red Cross Mississippi Valley relief fund are still in order through the agency of Treasurer Ralph Merriman, at the People's National bank, plans were announced today by officers of the local chapter of the mercy organization for a house to house canvass and a benefit moving picture exhibition as means of attaining the city's double quota goal.

The city originally raised $445, its quota, entirely through volunteer subscriptions. In a second appeal for aid, the National Red Cross doubled quotas throughout the nation and, consequently, the local chapter faced the prospect of raising an additional $445.

The movie performance will be given on two nights, Monday and Tuesday, in the Liberty theatre, and the net proceeds will be added to the fund. Tickets will be printed at the cost of the People's National bank.

The chapter hopes to sell at least 1,500 tickets, at the regular price of 35 cents each and in this event would obtain a large portion of the needed amount.

In addition, Boy Scout troops of the city will canvass Wellsville Saturday morning as their "daily good deed." The Scouts will convene at 8 o'clock Saturday morning at the Carnegie library, Ninth and Main street, and after receiving final instructions will go to their respective districts. They will solicit as follows: Mill to Fifth street, Troop 20; Fifth to Tenth, Troop 15; Tenth to Fifteenth, Troop 22; Fifteenth to Twenty-fifth, Troop 21.

Clyde Parsons Assisted Rini in Carrying Victim to Bed.

Expert testimony featured the Tuesday afternoon session of the common pleas court trial, at Lisbon, of Salvatore Rini, East Liverpool, and Mrs. Marie Chorgas, his sister-in-law, of Minneapolis, jointly indicted for second degree murder in the death of Pasquale Anania, of Wellsville.

Dr. C. H. Bailey, of East Liverpool, who performed the autopsy over Anania's body, accupied the stand for more than two hours.

Two recesses were taken, the first upon the order of the court and the second at the request of Frank W. Mossman, of Leetonia, a juror, who informed the court of his sudden illness. This recess continued for 20 minutes.

Patrolman Lister on Stand.

Patrolman William Lister of East Liverpool was the first witness called by the state after the luncheon recess. He told of his call to the Rini apartment in the rear of the Euclid hotel on the night of March 22, last, by Dr. Albert J. Michaels, where Anania was lying dead in bed. He testified that other officers came later, and that Rini and Mrs. Chorgas were arrested.

When cross-examined by Defense Attorney W. A. O'Grady and handed a broken knife, an exhibit of the state, the witness replied said that he had never seen "that" knife.

"It was the other knife that I saw," the witness declared when he was handed another knife, also broken.

"I asked Rini," Lister said, "if he had another knife and he gave me a penknife," which had been introduced by the state as exhibit No. 3. "I saw a stain on the blade of that knife. "Mrs. Chorgas said to me that she had borrowed the knife from Rini to sharpen a lead pencil."

The witness also said under cross-examination that when he entered the kitchen of the apartment there was raw meat on a table, but that it had an odor, and that it had seemed to have been there for a period of time. "I would not have wanted to have eaten that meat," he explained.

A light top coat, said to have been Anania's was identified by the witness as the coat he saw in the room where the body was lying.

Dr. Bailey Testifies.

When Dr. Bailey was placed on the stand, his testimony was confined to observations during the autopsy upon the body of Anania. He was questioned by Prosecutor Robert M. Brookes.

When the witness was shown the top coat worn by Anania, the coat was identified as one in which a cut in the cloth in the upper front side corresponded with the entrance wound in the left breast of Anania. He said that the wound could have been caused by the blade of the penknife already introduced.

O'Grady then took the witness. O'Grady had obtained a 12-inch office rule, and handing this to the witness, asked him to measure the remaining portion of steel in the two broken kitchen knives and also the blade of the penknife.

"From the character of the penetration, I would say that death could have resulted in two or three minutes," the witness testified.

At this part of the examination a youth, Valentino Crea, was again brought into the court room. He was instructed by O'Grady to bare his left breast, and once again a physician, standing before the jury marked on the flesh with mercurochrome the position of the wounds as they were disclosed upon the left breast of Anania when the autopsy was held.

"Did you or did you not observe other constitutional or social marks that would have lead to death?" O'Grady.

"No."

The witness was then given another knife, one with a broken blade, and was asked if the wound in the left breast of Anania could have been caused by that knife.

"No, it would not," he replied.

"What is alcohol used for?" he was asked.

"As a stimulant and as a food," he answered, "but as the laity understands it, it acts as a stimulant, but it does not always stimulate the heart, but sometimes causes depression."

"The penknife could have caused the wound?" asked Mr. Brookes.

"The condition of the heart and the force of the blow would depress the chest wall downward," was the reply. "The wound was a tapering one." Brookes unbottoned his vest and threw his top coat back over his left shoulder and the witness standing in front of him again explained the position of the wound in the body of Anania. "It was from left to right, and downward," the jury was told.

Chief McDermott Testifies.

Chief of Police Hugh McDermott of East Liverpool, testified that he had had in his possession the penknife, known as state exhibit No. 3, and that he had examined it under the "finger-print glass." McDermott explained this was a powerful glass, and that his examination disclosed a substance on the blade similar to a liquid and also some lint. "I then gave the knife to the prosecuting attorney," the witness said.

When the penknife was handed the witness, he said that some of the substance had disappeared and some of the lint was absent.

"Did you have the knife examined by any one?" O'Grady asked.

"I never had the knife examined as I gave it to the prosecutor," he replied.

Blue Serge Coat Introduced.

Under direct examination by Assistant Prosecutor Baukecht, Captain of Police Mason Conley testified that after being summoned to the Rini apartment he had talked with Rini and Mrs. Chorgas.

"I asked her wath happened?" Conley said." and she said 'Patsy said he was cutting meat and the knife slipped and he cut himself.'

A blue serge coat was then introduced as Exhibit No. 4 by the state.

After the coat was identified, Conley said: "I found the coat about 20 feet west of the building in the vacant lot, and about 15 feet north in the lot from the alley shortly after 11 o'clock that night. When I talked with Rini about the coat, he said it was in the kitchen on a chair or hanging up."

"Anania was lying on the bed in the little back bedroom," the witness said under cross-examination by O'Grady. "I did not talk with Rini at the apartment. When I arrived there he was already under arrest.

"I talked with Mrs. Chorgas and she said, 'Patsy said he did it.' Mrs. Chorgas was sitting at the foot of a folding bed or davenport in the larger room at the time I was talking with her and had been reading a magazine. She told me that Rini had been in bed."

Clyde Parsons Called.

During the testimony of Clyde Parsons, it was disclosed that it was he and Rini who had carried the body of Anania from the bathroom to the little bedroom in the Rini apartment. The witness was under direct examination by Brookes, when he explained that he had been informed that someone in the bathroom was ill, and that he took a glass of soda and water into the bathroom. He testified he saw Anania sitting there. He declared that Rini had opened the bathroom door for him, and that Rini had said to his "' Patsy is stubborn,' and that he 'wouldn't take anything when he is that way.'"

"I suggested to Rini that he call a physician," Parsons said, "and then Rini asked me if I would help carry Anania into the bedroom. I took Anania by the ankles, and Rini took him by the head and shoulders, and in that position we carried Anania into the little bedroom and placed him on the bed.

"After we laid him on the bed I got a mirror and held it over his mouth and nose to observe whether or not he was breathing. Rini then went after a doctor, and I left the place before Dr. Michaels arrived."

Under cross-examination by O'Grady, Parsons testified that after the body of Anania had been carried into the bedroom, he said to Mrs. Chorgas, "I believe he is dead, but she repield, 'No, I don't think so, I have seen him like that lots.'"

"Didn't Rini say to you, 'He looks better now, there is more color in his face?'" Parson was asked by O'Grady.

"No, sir."

"Did you say he was dead?"

"No, sir."

"Did Rini say to you he didn't want a doctor because Patsy didn't want one?"

"No, sir."

"Why did you start to give Patsy some soda and water?"

"Because I thought he had been drinking."

Mother Identifies Clothing.

Mrs. Ralph Anania, mother of the dead man, was then called to the witness stand by O'Grady.

O'Grady asked the witness to identify three articles of clothing that had been previously introduced by the state as having belonged to her son.

Mrs. Anania looked at the clothing and sobbed "O, Patsy!" For several moments she was in tears.

"I'm sorry that I was compelled to recall you to the stand," O'Grady said.

Mrs. Anania then left the stand, with the prosecutor accompanying her to her seat where she again wept.

Felix Anania is Witness.

Felix Anania, the next witness placed on the stand by the state, was examined briefly by Brookes. He admitted that he was an uncle of Patsy Anania, and when he was handed a broken kitchen knife marked exhibit No. 1, he identified it as the one he found under a small dresser in the bed room of the Rini apartment. He testified that he gave the knife to Patrolman McFarland at East Liverpool.

O'Grady, cross-examining, read to him from the record of the witness' testimony at the hearing of application for bail held before Judge Lodge Riddle.

Anania admitted that he gave such testimony.

"I asked you if you had a knife?" O'Grady said.

"I found a knife," the witness replied. "You asked if I found a knife in the vacant lot in the rear of the hotel and I said no. I found the knife on the floor under the dresser in the small bedroom."

"You have taken an interest in this case?"

"Yes, I have."

"You've interviewed some witnesses for the prosecutor?"

"Yes, some."

"Yes."

"Didn't you say to her that you would take Rini's body and grind it up and sell it to the public?"

"I did not."

"Or words to that effect?"

"No, sir."

"You suggested to Rini to stay away from Patsy, and didn't you know that Patsy had a date with Mrs. Chorgas that night?"

"I did not."

"You remember a trip you made during the Wallen trial when you took Rini and Mrs. Chorgas from Lisbon to East Liverpool?"

"Mr. and Mrs. Rini were peeved because Mrs. Chorgas didn't go home with them."

"Didn't you repeat to Rini to stay away from Patsy?"

"I've told Rini to stay away from Patsy."

"What is your business?"

"I've been in the contracting business, but I have been ill during the greater part of the winter," the witness replied.

The witness then under re-direct examination by Brookes declared that his nephew had given Rini money.

Dr. Bailey was then called to the stand by the defense, and under cross-examination by Attorney Raymond Knepper was asked if he knew how long the blade of the broken kitchen knife was, that had been introduced as exhibit 1 by the state.

It was suggested by the state in an objection that the witness could have no means of knowing.

Governor Will Permit Dearmond Measure to Become Law.

COLUMBUS, O., May 4.—Vetoing the bill, by Representative L. L. Marshall, Cleveland, which provided for increased fees to be charged for registration of land titles and examination of records, Governor Vic Donahey today attached his approving signature to seven legislative measures and announced his intention of permitting the Dearmond bill, authorizing abandonment, for canal purposes, of that portion of the Miami and Erie canal between Middletown and Cincinnati, to become a law without his signature.

To date, Governor Donahey has vetoed 24 measures passed at the present session of the Ohio legislature.

Measures approved by the governor today are: The Morton bill, giving county commissioners power during thawing season to reduce the legally authorized truck loads 50 per cent; the Creighton-Anderson bill, providing that persons convicted of driving an auto while intoxicated may be prohibited from driving for six months or a year; the Emmons-Bellinger bill, relative to the division of funds and relative to the division of funds and indebtedness when territory is annexed to a municipal corporation; the Streicher bill, amending the Toledo municipal court act; the Snow bill, correcting a minor error in the law relating to wills executed in other states; the Penny bill, strengthening the optometry law, and the Cross bill, amending the Dayton municipal court act.

Bills Signed Monday.

Announcing his veto of the Marshall bill, Governor Donahey pointed out that increased fees provided for by the bill "would amount to 100 per cent of the rate as it now exists, or even more."

Governor Donahey late Monday vetoed three bills bills, signed two and permitted one to become a law without his signature.

The measures vetoed are: The Johnson bill, requiring publication in newspapers of financial statements by county auditors and by township treasurers annually; the Abele bill, providing for a creation of a police court in the village of Bratenahl, Cuyahoga county, and the Bustard bill, providing for establishment of a county planning department for Cuyahoga county.

The governor signed the Chappelear bill, increasing the pay of the state law librarian from $2,500 to $3,000 a year, and the Mooney bill, authorizing the state highway department to improve roads to state forests and game preserves.

The Evans bill, providing for the pensioning or insuring of public library employes, was permitted to become a law without the governor's signature.

Gray Accuses Woman

powders in Henri's in June, 1926?

Counsel for Mrs. Snyder objected and was sustained.

Gray was then asked to tell about a meeting with her in June, 1926, at the Waldorf.

"Luke had brought over two bottles of rye and two vials of some kind of sleeping powder, so she said. I drank the rye. She asked me to try out these powders to see what effect they'd have on me. I asked her if they were poison and she said no. I tried the powders from both bottles and I didn't know much what happened until 8 the next morning."

Q. Just how did you feel after taking the powders? A. My brain was dazed and numb.

Gray said he took the powders about 5:30 in the afternoon. He said she called him up about 8:30 o'clock the next morning and asked him how he felt.

"I said I felt terrible," he said. "She said: 'Did you know you left me downstairs last night?' I said No. She had driven me around in an automobile most of the night. Then she remarked that the powders were potent enough for a good use. I agreed they were potent enough."

Q. What did she say them? A. Are you going home, she inquired. I said no, I felt too terrible.

Gray said he called him again about noon.

Q. What did she say then? A. She inquired how I felt. "Somewhat better," I replied. I said I was going home, although I was in a daze.

Tells About Powders.

Mrs. Snyder did not look at Gray as he told about the powders. She sat with her head bowed and appeared listless and disinterested.

Gray then testified he met Mrs. Snyder "five or six times" at the Waldorf in September, 1926.

He testified she said she was going to do away with "the governor." I told her I thought she was crazy and ought to have her head examined. I asked her how she planned to do it. She said she tried out the powders on him once in prune whip and they had no effect. She said she would try gas. I told her such a scheme was totally out of the question and that she did not know what she was doing."

Q. What else did she say? A. Well, she brought up the question of her cousin's divorce and she said she wanted to get a divorce.

Q. What else did she say? A. She said she planned to see a doctor as she was having considerable trouble with her heart and at times would faint away.

Planned Motor Trip.

Gray said he suggested to Mrs. Snyder that a trip of some kind would help her. He had a new car and offered to take her on a tour upstate. "I though she might forget her plan," he said.

He said she asked him why he got a new car, saying "you have mine, haven't you?' he replied that he was capable of buying his own cars.

She agreed to go on the trip, he related, and told her mother she was going away with friends of hers on a Canadian trip.

Gray said he told her to get a divorce. She replied, he said, that she had no evidence against him. He suggested Snyder be "framed" just like her cousin's husband was "framed." She said, "no," Gray related.

Gray said they talked about a trip they were to make and that Mrs. Snyder told him a man wanted to go along with her, but she refused. "She said," testified Gray, "that this man had given her money the first time she met him.

In October, 1926, Gray saw Mrs. Snyder "many times," he testified. Once, she told him she had an engagement to meet her cousin, Ethel, to arrange the divorce matter. He quoted her as saying she had another tilt with "the old crab" and had left home in a huff.

Hudson Valley Trip.

Later that October they met in Newark. Gray said she told him "everything was fixed at home," that her husband had consented to her leaving and that her mother was going to take their child.

Gray said he and Mrs. Snyder drove through the Hudson valley to Newburgh and then to Kingston, N. Y. He quoted her saying that "this was her first moneymoon." At Kingston, he related, they had many drinks and didn't get out of there for a week.

He then told of his trips to Kingston, Albany, Troy and Schenectady.

Then followed stories of visits to Amsterdam, Gloversville, Boonesville, Watertown, Syracuse and Binghamton, N. Y., and Scranton, Pa.

Tells of "Knockout Drops."

Gray declared that while he and Mrs. Snyder were at Scranton, he told her he could not keep up the pace they were going, as he had work to do. They went to Stroudsburg, Pa., Newark, N. J., and then to Orange, where he said he repaid the money she loaned him.

They met at Henri's restaurant in New York again in October, and again, she told him of quarrels with her husband, and asked him to find out about "knockout drops" for her. She later explained to him in her home how she had kicked off the gas-pipe as her husband lay sleeping, he said, but when she returned to the house Snyder was walking in the street to get air. Mrs. Snyder told him that she had tried to kill her husband before; that she couldn't stand him any longer, and was determined to get rid of him. Gray said he told her she was "absolutely insane." Describing another attempt which he said Mrs. Snyder told him of, Gray said she declared she took him liquor to drink while he was working in his garage with the car motor running, "nothing happened."

Mrs. Snyder put "powders" which she obtained from a druggist into small bottles of liquor which Gray had brought her at her request, the witness said.

Exchanged Christmas Presents.

In November, Gray said, he met Mrs. Snyder "six or seven times" she told him she had definitely decided to "drop the divorce plan." He said he learned the ingredients of "knockout drops" and told Mrs. Snyder what they were, at her request, but refused to obtain them for her, as she asked. She administered them twice, and on the second occasion, also knocked off the gas pipe, Gray said she told him, but without results.

He and Mrs. Snyder exchanged Christmas presents, he said, later, she asked him if he knew how to shoot a revolver, and he said he did not.

Again and again Gray declared that Mrs. Snyder had implored him to devise a plan of killing her husband but that he steadily rejected the idea. She gas, powders and knockout drops—to made several ineffectual attempts—by kill him, he asserted, and finally urged him to shoot him.

"No," he declared, he said, "I never shot a gun in my life and I'm not going to begin with murder."

He said he told her the murder plan was getting to be an obsession with her.

Snyder Became Suspicious.

Mrs. Snyder told him that she believed her husband was growing suspicious, he said. She had heard that her husband was going out to lunch with another girl, and she tried to catch him, visiting a cafe, but was unsuccessful, the witness declared.

After Christmas, Mrs. Snyder called Gray, he said, to her home to see the Christmas tree.

"She asked me if I couldn't help her by shooting her husband," Gray testified. "I told her no—absolutely no. I never had shot a gun in my life and I wasn't going to start in by murder. I told her if she was going to get rid of her husband she would have to do it all alone." When she met him against she said she was having trouble keeping up her husband's insurance, and he advised her to drop it, but she refused, saying she would lose money if she did.

Again in January, she asked him to help get rid of her husband, Gray said, and he told her "it was becoming an obsession with her," he said. Court adjourned for luncheon, as the introduction of letters purporting to have been received by Gray during several months, was blocked by objections from counsel for Mrs. Snyder. Gray was still on the stand.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 4.—The momentum of Tuesday's final spurt in speculative stocks carried prices of most of the active issues to higher levels at the beginning to trading today. The rails and motors continued their position of leadership, though the California oil stocks were quick to respond to the price advances of 4 to 6 cents a gallon in retail gasoline.

Encouraged by the brilliant forward price movements of the speculative favorites and the demand for stocks from outside sources, the bullish interests bid up the well-known stocks in an effort to force short covering. General Motors carried its spectacular advance to a new peak at 197, while numerous low-priced motor stocks like Paige, Detroit and Moon sold up a point or more.

Considering the extent of the flood ravages, the decline of about 6,000 cars in weekly freight loadings was considered a favorable commentary on transportation records in the country as a whole.

The new 22,000-barrel daily increase in crude oil production was in line with estimates, and the end of the over-production period is not in sight. Call money was unchanged at 4 per cent.

Cotton gained 12 to 15 points in the early trading and grain was firm.

GAS STATION ROBBERS FLEE

Attempt to Loot Sixth Street Place is Frustrated.

An unsuccessful attempt was made early today to loot the Diamond Parking and Service station, located on the city lot in West Sixth street.

At 3:30 a. m. Patrolman James Haley, on duty in the Diamond, noticed an automobile drive into the parking lot. He hurried through Summit lane to the rear of the lot.

In the meantime one of the two men in the car had smashed the glass in the rear door of the station and turned the key in the lock. His confederate was standing on the outside when he saw Haley. He warned his companion, and both men escaped in the machine. Because of the dirty condition of the license plates, Haley was unable to obtain the number of the car.

Approximately $40 in change was hidden in the filling station.

the pigment test tells you the house paint to use . .

SEEING is believing! We were undecided ourselves about what made good house paint until we saw the pigment test. Look at the black panel below! Note that of the six pigments used in house paint only white lead and white zinc—the pigments used in Devoe Lead and Zinc Paint—form opaque white films that completely cover and hide the surface. The others all form translucent films. That's why Devoe covers better, spreads farther, gives greater protection.

WARNS AGAINST 'GYP' SOLICITOR

County Motor Club Statement Refers to Alleged Fleecing.

The Columbiana County Motor club, through E. M. Diehl, secretary, today issued a warning against the operations of so-called "gyp" solicitors, who, it is claimed, recently made several attempts to fleece Columbiana county business men and motorists through fradulent schemes.

The club's statement follows:

"This is the season of the year when the "gyps" are most active. Heavy travel time is their harvest time and it behooves car owners, hotels, garages and service stations to beware.

"The 'gyp' is often a consumate artist. He presents himself in a thousand varieties. Today he is selling alleged service contracts, probably for two years, with a discount to boot. Tomorrow, he is selling alleged insurance, which if you read the small print, definitely says: 'This is not a policy of insurance.' And the next day he is gone to new pastures to sell official signs to hotels, garages and service stations.

"At the present time the American Automobile association has on file the names of 125 of these fake concerns. They thrive on the reputation of bonafide motor clubs, often using a fake emblem and trade mark.

"The main reason why they are able to continue levying a toll of some $30,000,000 a year is because the average car owner has not yet learned that he can protect himself, if, before yielding to the blandishments of the high-pressure salesmen of 'gypdom,' he consults the nearest motor club who make it their business to keep a file of 'gyps' on hand."

Whole Chesapeake Family Built to Rugged Health

L. M. McMasters, his wife and three children, all ill. Entire family used Tanlac and grew back to vigorous health. Give full credit to Tanlac for quick recovery.

Mr. McMasters lives on Sim Creek Road, Chesapeake, Ohio. Of his recent trying experience he says: "For two years stomach and liver trouble had gradually run me down and when constipation developed that seemed the last straw needed to break me, and to make things worse all of my family were sick more or less all the time. My wife was subject to nervous attacks that kept us all awake at night. The children caught colds for no apparent reason and were confined to bed for several days at a time. None of us were getting the proper nourishment, and temporary relief would be followed by fresh attacks.

"We decided to give Tanlac a trial and it put us all on our feet. Our grocery bills are much higher now. We have no expense for medicines for we all eat heartily, and our food does us good. That was some time ago and we've all enjoyed the finest health since, eating and sleeping normally and getting full value out of life. All the credit belongs to Tanlac."

If overwork or neglect have left their mark on you, try Tanlac. It is nature's own body builder, made from herbs, roots and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 52 million bottles sold.

Sweet Breath

And white teeth—premier charms

Here is the best way to keep your breath sweet, your teeth white and your morning taste delightful.

Here is everything you need for beauty and health in the mouth—all in one application.

The way is Phillips' Dental Magnesia tooth paste, with all it combines with magnesia. Some 50 great experts have collaborated to make this the greatest tooth paste men have yet created.

It removes—at once—the dingy coats which form on teeth, and restores their natural glisten. It applies antiseptics to combat germs attacks in the mouth. It embodies deodorants to purify the breath. Above all, it applies magnesia—forces it between the teeth. Not ordinary magnesia, but Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in concentrated form. Dentists have for 50 years advised that to their patients.

Magnesia neutralizes acids the chief enemies of the teeth and gums. It goes wherever the acids form, and they perish at its touch. No acid can live in the presence of magnesia.

You will never go to sleep without magnesia on your teeth when you know what it means to you. Nor will you ever use it in another form when you try this matchless combination. Go today and learn how much this tooth paste means to you and yours.

Five in One
Its 15 ingredients combine in one tooth paste these five important helps:
Antacids Cleansers
Antiseptics Polishers

Wrapping Up Parcels of Dreams

No one has ever entered our store to inquire for a "package of dreams" and yet that is really what our 773 stores sell. Perhaps we've all formed the habit of never asking for what we truly want. Youth comes in to inquire for a Blue Dress, and carries out a bit of Romance for Saturday night under her arm. The matron sighs enviously as she passes the rack of sports sweaters, and a saleswoman exchanges some silver coins for a colorful bit of Youth.

The J. C. Penney Company has always trained its salesforce to fulfill, not only the expressed wants of its customers, but to find out and satisfy, if possible, those hidden longings we all tuck away in the corners of our hearts.

Youth, Romance, Adventure, Fun and Dreams — they are all passed across our counters in brown paper parcels for our customers to take home.

Recession From 150 to 1 to 40 to 1 Gives Rise to Possibility Also That Pay-off May be Made in Iron Washers; E. B. McLean's Colt is Long Shot for Preakness Now.

By Davis J. Walsh

NEW YORK, May 4.—Among men who are presumed to know their rolled oats, a quiet but effective play was well under way today on an outsider to win both the Preakness on Monday and the Kentucky Derby at the classic downs five days later. The saps, they say, are rushing to the window to take the short money on obvious choices but saps are notorious for the fact that they never collect anything but damages, mostly to the roll. Besides, it is contended, this is not the year for public choices, a statement that is highly credible in view of the fact that only two favorites have galloped home at the downs in the last twenty-four years.

This, therefore, is the so-called wise money and a lot of it has gone on J. N. Camien's Hydromel; so much of it, in fact, that the colt's price has receded from 150 to 1 to something like 40 to 1 in the winter books. This fact, of course, gives rise to the disquieting possibility that, if Hydromel wins, the pay-off may be made in iron washers, something of the sort having happened with Zev four years ago.

But then, many a race course has had eight races in one day—seven on the track and one with the bookie who took your finger bet, so it's all even.

McLean Colt Long Shot.

Anyhow, the boys would have to continue backing Hydromel right up to post time, as they did with Zev, to make such a condition possible. As it is, the play that is certain to go in on Whiskery, Osmond, Scapa Flow, Kiev, Justice F., Rip Rap, J. Fred A and other favorites who don't win would take the curse off the long shot that does win.

The long shot for the Preakness in this section right now is Jock, the E. B. McLean colt. The field for the race at Pimlico numbers 22 at the moment and all of them are Derby eligibles, so we will know more about Churchhill downs on Monday night than on any other, with the possible exception of the following Saturday evening. Whiskery is scheduled to arrive at Pimlico today and will leave for Louisville the day after the Preakness, provided he shows anything. Other good ones at the Preakness will be Scapa Flow, Pandera, Justice F., Rip Rap, Sankari and Sweepster. They also will be sent along to Louisville or left behind, according to the way they run.

The under cover horse of the race is Dolan, of the E. F. Cooney stable. No one knows anything about him, so a lot of the boys are disposed to chance a casual dollar on his nose.

Whiskery and Justice F., however, are the probable choices and will so remain even up to and including the derby if they run well at Pimlico. Whiskery has done everything asked of him so far, running equally well on dry and heavy tracks. As for Justice F., he won the New Orleans handicap and then went west to finish second in the Tia Juana classic. Interference, they say, kept him from winning, so the horse will have plenty of friends until such time as he turns up absent at the pay off.

At the same time, Hydromel's running in Kentucky cannot be overlooked and won't be. He recently stepped the full distance in 2:05 which will win the average derby. While he was about it, he turned the mile in 1:37 1-5 and then nipped the track record for the extra 70 yards by doing 1:42. That kind of running is rather reassuring at odds of 40 to 1.

SOFT BALL TEAMS HOLD FINAL MEET

Eligibility Lists to be Submitted Tonight.

Final arrangements preparatory to the opening of the Review-Tribune Recreation circuit on Monday night will be completed at a meeting of team managers, representatives and officials tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the newspaper offices.

At tonight's session, each team manager will be required to file his eligibility list with league officials.

Each club is limited to 15 players and a manager. Immediately after eligibility lists are submitted tonight, players of each club become permanent members of that club and will not be permitted to change affiliations unless by agreement between managers or in trades.

It is likely also that one or two rule requirements will be stressed, including use of finger mitts by first basemen and catchers.

In practice games thus far it is observed that a majority of both catchers and first sackers disdain the use of mitts, but it is likely the rules committee will make it legal for either player to use a glove if he desires.

It is quite possible also that the committee will stress the regulation that compels catches by defensive fielders to be made only in the fielder's hand, and not against his chest.

The Printers nosed out a 9 to 8 decision over the Y. M. C. A. last night at the playground in a hotly contested extra inning scrap, featured by the performances of the outgardeners on both clubs, chiefly the middle fielders who played hide and seek in among the swings and iron posts in that particular pasture in an effort to snag the drives that came their way. Both clubs made frequent changes in their lineups as candidates tried out for places.

CORDS PLAY HIGH NINE

Riley's New Pitchers to Work in Thursday Contest.

Both of Manager Frank Riley's new pitchers, one a right hander and the other a southpaw twister, will work in tomorrow night's practice clash with the high school ball club at Smith Field.

The two teams are scheduled to go into action at 5:30.

Litscomb, a former Parsons, W. Va., lad, will toe the rubber for the school boys, with the veteran Vanaman catching, against the Superior Cords.

Evans, who worked five innings in Saturday's exhibition with Turk-Nash, will be on the mound for the Superior Cords, with Potts receiving.

There will be no admission charged.

MILL TEAM WINS FROM RAILROAD

SEEKS HEAVY TITLE VIA BERLIN, ITALY AND N. Y.

Belief is general in New York that Tex Rickard is juggling his heavyweight tourney plans in the hope of pointing Paolino Uzcudun, Spanish heavy, for the semi-final match with Jack Dempsey or the title match with Tunney. Paolino has done little in the U. S. to warrant this, but has socked leading heavies in France, England, Germany, Italy, Cuba, and other parts. Photos above are of Paolino and his leading victims.

STRIBLING BEATEN BY LOUGHRAN

Georgian is Eliminated as Title Contender.

NEW YORK, May 4.—Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light heavyweight, looms today as the outstanding contender for Jack Delaney's crown. Loughran outpointed Young Stribling in a ten round bout here last night and eliminated the Georgian from the picture.

Loughran won seven of the ten rounds and gained the unanimous decision of the referee and two judges. Although the bout was hard fought, Loughran displayed a superior attack and outboxed the speedy Georgian.

Stribling was fast at the start and landed many clean blows, but as the fight wore on he resorted to his old style of wrestling and holding. Loughran began to solve the Georgian's tricky style and pummeled him with damaging body blows.

Loughran declared after the fight that he "would win the championship within a year," but no lines of worry could be detected on the countenance of Delaney, the champion, who witnessed the fight.

REVISION OF FISH BILL IS SOUGHT

Ohio Sportsmen Would Correct Bad Features of House Bill.

COLUMBUS, O., May 4.—While the organized sportsmen of Ohio had nothing to do with the drafting and presentation of the original bill the League of Ohio Sportsmen today stood ready to offer its good offices and legal advices to correct bad features of House Bill No. 244 which prohibits use of a reel in fishing, sale of crawfish for bait, and which has many other features, it was anounced at league headquarters here today. The bill as passed by legislature was drafted by the fish and game department and presented as its measure, said I. S. Myers, league president, Akron, who urged every cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, in an effort to correct the bill.

The sportsmen declare that the bill in addition to making it unlawful to use a reel also takes away from the farmer the right to use a trot line, makes sale of frogs in restaurants unlawful, requires children under 18 years of age to buy a license to use a reel, gives alleged special privileges to non-residents, makes it unlawful to take a mussel, and may raise the limit on bass to 30 per day because of ambiguous wording.

The sportsmen advocate stopping of commercial mussel fishing, lower limit on bass, curtailing of sale of live bait, and other conservation measures, but point out that to stop trot lining would be unfair to craftsmen in southern Ohio where these fish, that are bottom feeders, can be taken in no other way and that mussels are their chief bait.

It is doubtful if the legislature will give time to the bill when it returns, or let down the bars to introduction of a redrafted measure. Many sportsmen are asking Gov. Donahey to veto the bill if presented to him in its present form, league officials assert.

Nearly 380,000 automobiles were sent abroad from the United States and Canada last year.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE.

Back in her compartment, after luncheon, the talk went on. Hedwig slipped away unobserved. Disturbing as she found this searching analysis of his, she couldn't let him stop. She'd never heard the remark of the shrewd Frenchman to the effect that talking love is making love. She only knew that she couldn't let him stop. She knew no other man like him. Henry had seemed way out, she knew now, because she had so helplessly wanted him to seem that. But this man was real. In his mind, animating every thought and every word, she felt an honesty that was to her a vaguely heartbreaking sort of beauty . . she must find a way to give him honesty for honesty. Somehow. She couldn't go to him with a lie on her face—even if he shouldn't want her then . . . And all this he was saying couldn't be true. That about the force of her career. She couldn't face it. She'd show him. She'd cook for him. She'd live in two rooms. If only she could make him see it! If only she could master her thoughts and find a voice for this painful, wonderful stirring and swelling in her breast! She must find the way out of her inarticulate self. Everything kept on going so fast. . . And it was so queer There were dozens of men in Beverly she knew by their first names; but she hadn't once yet spoken this aloud Julian. She wondered if she ever could speak it. . . . Queerly, too, the De Brissac influence had become remote. She could also, at moments, forget it. She thought again of those separate compartments in her life. De Brissac had come as a shock. "But," she reflected, "it wasn't me. It never was me." . . . Somehow she must speak out. She must make him feel the truth as she felt it. He must know, from her own lips, that he was her man.

She realized that he was talking on in that troubled way. Talking with that detachment of his fairly outside of himself, looking on. He seemed strangely a child. She wanted to take his head in her arms and mother him. Even if her experience should come to him as a shock. . . She must listen.

"What I come down to is the question whether what we think of as our personal happiness is ever of any particular importance. Every job takes us out of the personal. And living is just a job, I suppose. What we do counts, of course. And what we are, or become, is a result of what we do. But I doubt whether our feelings are important. You've got to go on, whatever you may think at the moment. I couldn't take you out of all that just to live for me. That would be monstrous. Don't you see, Harriet? And God He knows I'm no money-maker. I'm just one of these unaccountable artist persons, just a gypsy. I have to wait and brood, let the cream rise as it will . . . and then may be nobody'll want it. I can't drive it or force it. I'm no industry! God, if only I were!"

A shadow fell across the compartment. In the doorway stood the conductor, with his, "Tickets, please!—" and behind him the Pullman man.

Hattie had to rummage through her shopping bag for her tickets. While she hunted her thoughts raced. Somehow these men were an opportunity. It almost seemed that she could speak through them to Julian. . . It was coming true. She could speak.

"Is there—" she was gazing up at them, her face was the sweetly blank mask of the famous picture star— "is there any room in the Grand Canyon car?"

The train conductor turned to the Pullman man.

"Why, yes, Miss John," said that official, eager to please—oh, he knew her!—"There's a couple that want to change to a through car. But I'd have to put you and your maid in a section. There's no compartment."

"That'll be all right," said she, "if you have a berth for Mr. Dempster, too."

She could feel Julian's startled gaze, but didn't look. This was her competent every side. A year and a half of the picture business had developed that side. It was a relief to fall back into it for the moment. And it was amusing to know that Julian couldn't protest. He had to go away with the Pullman man after this things quite as matter-of-fact as she. She found she could even smile at him then, and secretly—playfully, even—catch his hand and give it a little squeeze. . . . This would be the first step on the way out of her problem. The effort with Henry had been ill judged, but this was right. She felt it, as the stony-faced Hedwig and the porter carried her things back through the train, exultantly. And the discovery that Julian was evading her brought a brooding faint smile. He had accepted the situation. She could see his suitcase resting on a seat a little way along the aisle. But she knew that he couldn't trust himself with her in the open car. Not now. She had read it in his eyes when he went away with the Pullman man and in the fingers that for a moment had clung to hers.

At least, in the evening, they had the observation platform to themselves. All day they had tacitly kept off this topic of the Canyon trip, even while rushing into it. For while outwardly all was as before—they were simply to be on the train, with Hedwig, one more day—their hearts, with that impulsive decision of hers, broke bounds. They were closer; no doubt about that. . . He said, finally, out here, tucked with her in a corner, on the little camp stools—

"This business does sort of crash in on us—this Canyon business. I was trying to think it out, Harriet. I'm afraid we're going too fast."

He found her hand. And she hid a smile in her cape. De Brissac, she assured herself, was now no more than a dim phantom of memory. She was through with him. For the first time the thought came, a thought that was radiantly colored with this new glowing atmosphere, that perhaps she needn't tell after all. It might only make Julian unhappy. He wasn't the sort to be crudely jealous. He had broad understanding. Why not just close the doors of memory on an experience in which she had never found hapiness. It didn't matter to her now. Why should it matter to him. . . Circumstances had driven her into it. The situation had developed far beyond her small capacity. The family had driven her, too, straight to that man—Alice, and Arthur, even Gran'ma. For the money they'd done that. And they'd keep right on driving her to him. . . She shivered. Julian reached around and tucked her cape closely about her. . . . That was what she yearned for, his protecting hand. She was tired of the battle. . . . When he found, as he was surely going to find, how simply and honestly she would give her life to him, he'd stop worrying about her career. She had stopped He'd see.

But she wasn't to get off so easily. Words came, suprisingly to herself; a nervous little uprush of speech; rather vehement; came out of one of those hidden under currents of mood that in natures so simple as hers are always stronger than any mere exercise of the brain.

"It's funny about all this success of mine." That troubled look was on her face. "Of course the money has been nice, having a pretty home and my car and everything. But I couldn't ever make it seem real."

"That's because it's still new."

"Perhaps." His fingers tightened about hers. "But I don't think it's just that. It's something else." She was staring out at the dimly receding track, unaware that he was studying her. She liked it when he gently put an arm about her shoulders. She settled wearly back against that arm and reached up her other hand to his. "It's the unpleasant atmosphere. Everything. All day. Everywhere I go. I don't want to work with De Brissac. He . . . takes advantage of me . . . ." Was she telling? She hadn't known she was going to say that. She rushed on, or rather this surprising deeper self rushed her on. "They all keep me at it. The family. They all live off me. Alice and Arthur and Emily. . . ."

"You don't mean that your brother-in-law. . . ."

She nodded nervously. "He doesn't do a thing but fuss over my business. Putters around. Gets on my nerves. And there's Gran'ma. She's in a sanatarium now. It's ninety dollars a week. And now Alice is going to. . . ." What was the saying! She clamped her lips shut on that. She must get hold of herself. What was the matter with her, anyway? It was almost as bad as the night she fainted, so long ago.

He was still studying her, with a deepening tenderness in his eyes. This was all new to him, this nervous disturbance. It stirred his really great capacity for pity. It shook him. Could it be wonderfully beautifuly true that the child neded him? She had, he saw clearly now, been passing through some deep experience. He could guess what. In a Bohemian world where men and women are thrown carelessly together in work that is in its nature emotional, such things have always happened, and, he well knew, will always happen. He knew in Paris and his New York. He was no moralist. He was, further, honest, and could say nom ore of the woman he loved than of himself. But his heart ached for her. And he tightened his grip about her little shoulders until her head sank as of right on his shoulder and her silky hair brushed his cheek. . . And so, without knowing it, without ever knowing it; aware herself only of his exquisite sympathy, she had told him everything.

"FLESH, DEVIL" AT CERAMIC

One of the world's most seductive screen charmers—being made violent love to by the champion lovemakers of two nations—this is the unique combination of the screen in "Flesh and the Devil," which opens a four-day run at the Ceramic theatre today.

Greta Garbo, blonde charmer of the screen and famous star from Europe, will know forever the difference between American and European lovemaking as a result of her role in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture—in fact, she had to act as a sort of judge of a battle for supremacy between the lovemakers of the American and the Swedish screen champions.

One of her screen lovers is John Gilbert, hero of "The Big Parade," "The Merry Widow," and famous for Hanson, the "Swedish Barrymore."

It is a gripping story based on sociological conditions in the old world, hanging on traditions of love and marriage, and with Miss Garbo in the role of a seductive modern Circe whose beauty and charm lures men to ruin. John Gilbert plays one of her lovers, and Hanson the other—his romantic roles—the other is Lars who marries her to precipitate one of the most powerful dramatic situations ever portrayed on the screen.
